LONDON NOTES

By The Air Mail

(From Our Special Correspondent).

London, Oct. 17.

Dr. Goebbels's statement to the Nazi leaders that if they had applied themselves to religion they might be bishops as well as leaders, and Herr Hitler might be a cardinal, is one of the worst pieces of propaganda that even the Propaganda Minister has yet produced.

German Roman Catholics will be specially interested, for both Dr. Goebbels and Herr Hitler have been excluded from the sacraments of the Catholic Church.

Dr. Goebbels was a member of the celebrated Unitas Verbinding—the Catholic students corporation of Freiburg University—and received a scholarship from the authorities.

Later, however, he married a rich divorcée, Hitler being best man at the wedding. Since that time both have been refused the sacraments.

Autograph Scrutiny

When George O'Brien, the film star, was identified in Trafalgar-square while making one of the London "exteriors" for his new picture, "The Cowboy Millionaire," the autograph hunters descended as thickly as the pigeons.

Having procured their victim's signature, however, not a few insisted, politely but very firmly, on seeing his passport. They were thus able to verify their specimens by careful comparison.

The Tallest Barrister

Lord Cushendun was an exceptionally tall man, standing, it was said, 6ft 7in in his socks.

In his legal days, disputes sometimes arose whether he or the late Sir Lewis Coward, K.C., was the tallest member of the Bar.

This was put to the test, in the presence of a number of lawyers, by each standing with his back to the wall and being meticulously measured.

It is recorded that Lord Cushendun proved to be the taller by a fraction of an inch.

Thus Lincoln's Inn scored a victory over its neighbour, Gray's.

Popular M. Flandin

M. Flandin, whose name has been mentioned in connection with the vacant Foreign Secretaryship in France, would be a very popular choice in this country.

M. Flandin, who speaks English perfectly and is interested in everything English, is a frequent visitor to this country.

Unlike most French politicians, M. Flandin is extremely tall—in the neighbourhood of 6ft 4in—and broad in proportion.

During his visits to this country he usually manages to fit in some shooting with friends. Indeed, shooting is generally the primary object of his coming here. He is an excellent shot, and has a gun in a syndicate partridge shoot near Paris.

M. Flandin, who was one of the most successful of recent Finance Ministers, is the leader of the powerful Alliance Démocratique, which occupies a position in the Left Centre of French politics and can always be counted upon as a stabilising factor.

Vanderbilt Case Judge

American judicial methods present many contrasts to our own, but none stranger than the twice daily conferences at which the Press is being kept informed of the private hearings of the Vanderbilt case.

Mr. Justice Carew, of the New York Supreme Court, who is hearing the case, feels it his duty to exclude the Press and public from the court.

But he is at great pains after the wearying morning and afternoon sessions to summarise the proceedings for the reporters.

Fifteen or twenty of them—men and women—crowd into his study, perching themselves round him on chairs and couches, and firing questions at him in a highly personal manner.

Seen, But Not Heard

But this does not seem so strange in a country where the President himself allows newsgatherers to cross-examine him in a similar fashion.

Like President Roosevelt, Mr. Justice Carew simply makes a wry face and says nothing when questions are too indiscreet.

Incidentally, the Vanderbilt case is private only so far as hearing is concerned. Reporters are allowed to watch the proceedings through a sound-proof plateglass window.

Mr. Justice Acton's Retirement

The final exit of a High Court judge from the scene of his labours is entirely devoid of ceremonial spectacle.

Mr. Justice Acton's quiet departure yesterday was in keeping with his unassuming character.

The Bench loses one who was not afraid to be outspoken when necessary.

Not long ago he took to task those who, not caring to show their hand, deliberately withhold particulars necessary to the administration of justice.

This was during the hearing of a New Procedure case, when Mr. Justice Acton remarked:

I do not know why a party objects to giving particulars. If he has a good case, it can do no harm. If he has a bad case, it will make him search for them.

The New Procedure aims at narrowing down the issues in a case by complete disclosures of "particulars."

Bridge Match Privacy

Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson and Mr. Theodore Lightner, the three members of last year's American team for the Schwab International Bridge Trophy, will find a strange contrast when they begin the six-day match against England on Monday.

This year the only persons to be admitted to the match will be the official referee, the umpires, scorers, and representatives of the Press.

Last year 26,000 people watched, and their tension and exclamations affected the play—though many of them could see only by means of periscopes and mirrors.

Mr. Culbertson is this year admitting even the uninitiated into his innermost secrets of play, for he has so far departed from his usual custom as to deliver a public lecture on bridge.

THE HOUSE OF ROTHSCHILD

"Colonel Fitzroy," Nathan said, "I give Napoleon a hundred Days. If at the end of that time you're still alive—and you seem to be the type that can't be killed—you may come and talk with me in London."

Behind the desk in his handsome London office Nathan Rothschild sat. He looked at Herries, commissary-in-chief for England, and smiled thoughtfully. He looked at young Lieutenant-Colonel Fitzroy and smiled drily. Little escaped the shrewd eyes of Nathan Rothschild. Little was misinterpreted by his knowing mind.

"Colonel Fitzroy arrived this morning from Wellington's headquarters," Herries said "He's told me how much the General appreciates what you have done." And now Herries and young Fitzroy exchanged knowing smiles.

"Lord Wellington's language on the battlefield cannot be repeated, sir." Fitzroy hastened to explain to Nathan, "but I heard him declare that he would not swap any one of those five dash-dash Rothschilds for any five of Napoleon Bonaparte's dash-dash brigades."

"May I tell the Prime Minister you agree to one more loan?" Herries put in quickly, as Nathan's eyes twinkled.

Nathan Rothschild looked at him thoughtfully. "Do you realize," he asked, "that the Allies are drawing on us throughout Europe? Metternich in Austria, Ruffo in Italy, Ledrantz in Prussia and Tallyrand in France."

Herries shook his head somberly. "It is money that wins wars."

"It is money that makes wars," Nathan stated.

"With five million pounds we can hold Napoleon at bay—"

Nathan was silent for a moment. Then he said: "Tell the Prime Minister that I refuse to raise five million pounds to keep the Allies fighting Napoleon."

Herries looked stunned. "I'm sorry—" he said, at last.

Nathan turned to Fitzroy. "But tell Wellington," he said drily, "that the five dash-dash Rothschilds will let him have ten million—if he will guarantee to smash him!"

Bitter Hostility

Fitzroy's blue eyes sparkled. Herries drew a long, relieved breath. You could count on this man—always.

Smiling, Nathan Rothschild bowed them out. But when he returned to his home his eyes were grave. Not yet was Napoleon conquered. Not yet was peace assured. And his people—not yet did they walk in dignity as his father had dreamed. Only in England did ambassadors come openly to the House of Rothschild. And even there other English bankers resented the power of the Jewish banking house. And in Austria, in Prussia, where his old mother still lived in the Jew street, hostility was bitter. Secretly Ministers borrowed money off the Jew, but outwardly they reviled him.

Julie, reading her father's anxiety in his grave face, decided to wait a while before speaking to him of her love.

But one day through the streets of London, British battle-flags, torn and tattered under fire, snapped gallantly in the wind at the head of a victory parade. Music of military bands mingled with the cheers of the crowd. Napoleon was defeated. He was exiled to the island of Elba. And England was honoring his conqueror, Lord Wellington, whom a grateful King had rewarded with a dukedom.

In the palace a great banquet was being held. About the huge table were gathered diplomats, officers of the army, notables in full dress uniform. There were speeches—praise—applause. The Prime Minister thanked the General in England's name—proposed a toast to the Duke of Wellington.

At last, wearied of the endless adulation, the soldier turned to Herries. "Why wasn't Rothschild here?" he asked bluntly. Then as Herries, stammering, attempted a tactful reply, he interrupted: "Wasn't he asked?"

"Well—no—Your Grace," Herries admitted reluctantly.

A Pinch of Snuff!

"Wasn't the man who paid for these dashed wars important enough?" Wellington demanded.

"It wasn't that, exactly—" Herries began, distressed.

But again Wellington interrupted. "Well," he snapped, "if he can't come here, I suppose we can still go there. Fritz!" he called, and, as his aide hurried to him, he muttered: "Just as soon as I can get away, we're going to call on Nathan Rothschild. Dashed slight. I call it!" He soothed his feelings with a pinch of snuff. "Do you know where the old boy lives?"

"Very well indeed, Sir." Young Fitzroy grinned.

We Rothschilds," Nathan said drily, "have had just as big crowds following at our heels in Frankfort, Your Grace—but not with cheers."

"Well, I'll cheer for you, gladly," the soldier ejaculated. "I hope that someday Europe will realize that it owes you something more than money."

"Thank you, Your Grace." Nathan's face was serious. "My father was a man of peace," he went on earnestly. "We have never loaned money to make wars—always to end them."

"Everybody knows that," Wellington said, "and respects you for it."

"No, Your Grace—they don't know it, and they don't respect us," Nathan returned. "Europe has

"Darling," Fitzroy said, "I love you! Will you be a brave soldier and Wear My Ring? I'm going to see your father," he said determinedly.

Wellington stared. Then his rugged face creased in a sudden smile. "I'd forgotten about that daughter of his!" He chuckled. Then seeing a movement of breaking up about the table, he seized the young man's arm. Like two conspirators they hurried away.

In his beautifully appointed library Nathan Rothschild and his wife, Hannah, received their famous guest with unaffected pleasure. And Wellington relaxed happily with the air of a man at home among friends. Young Fitzroy stole away to the rose garden—and Julie. Outside, in the street, a murmur of excited voices arose. Cheers. The crowd had followed their hero. Rowerth, Nathan's secretary, closed the windows against the sound. Brought brandy.

"If they had any sense," Wellington said, sipping the drink gratefully, "it's you they'd be following around!"

tried to hide for shame because it borrowed from Jews."

Napoleon Imprisoned

"It's that Prussian fellow, Count Ledrantz, who's responsible for that rot!" Wellington snorted. "There's danger in a man like that—always making enemies!"

"It is a danger," Nathan agreed. "We're not out of the woods yet. Napoleon is imprisoned—but he's not dead," he ended significantly.

"Well—" The soldier lifted his glass. Stared at it thoughtfully. "Sound brandy you millionaires serve." He smiled.

Nathan lifted his glass. "To the peace of Europe," he said.

"I'm a soldier—but I drink to that!" Wellington said. "I say, Rothschild," he went on, suddenly serious. "I just heard this morning that there's going to be a dashed big loan floated—biggest thing ever issued—to get France on her feet again after her twenty years fighting. The five Allied powers to get together to help her out."

"Ah!" Nathan's face was alert, thoughtful. "The house that floats this loan will become the most powerful in Europe..."

"Now's your chance!" Wellington looked at him appreciatively.

"Your Grace, my deepest thanks for this very valuable information," Nathan said earnestly.

"Dashed dark secret!" The Duke chuckled. "They ought to know by now I can't keep 'em!"

"After all this creeping about in the dark—" Nathan rose in excitement, "I shall feel great satisfaction in being able to come out and bid in open competition with other banking houses! Drink again, Your Grace," he said impulsively, filling the Duke's glass. "Drink to the house that floats the French loan!"

"To the House of Rothschild—" Wellington lifted his glass, "and to its greatest member!" He bowed to Nathan. Then, smiling, he turned to the door as Julie and young Fitzroy entered. "I'm beginning to understand," he said to his young aide, "why you were always coming to me for leave to return to London 'on most pressing business'!"

Peace And Quiet

"Only five times, sir." Fitzroy grinned at his superior. Flung a tender glance at Julie.

"And once," Nathan put in wickedly, "when you sent him with despatches to the Prime Minister—Julie was waiting at the corner of Downing Street."

"We didn't think you knew!" Julie gasped, her eyes wide with astonishment.

"No use trying to fox this man?" Wellington laughed "He's a magician!"

Regretfully he said goodbye, and with the air of a martyr went out to make his way through the seething crowd.

Nathan chuckled as the footman closed the door after them. "He's longing for the peace and quiet of the battle-field!" he said. He turned questioning eyes to his daughter, who stood by a window, watching the departing Fitzroy.

Slowly Julie turned away from the window. She came toward her father and mother, her eyes troubled. "I—I ought to be very happy," she said. "But I'm not—not quite happy." Her lips quivered.

Hannah Rothschild looked at her daughter with quick sympathy. "What is it, dear?" she asked.

"I'm—frightened," Julie's eyes filled.

Nathan drew her to him. Tenderly he looked down into her troubled eyes. "I won't pretend, Julie," he said gravely, "that I would not rather have you marry one of your own people."

"That's what frightens me!" Julie's voice shook. "These dreadful prejudices! Can we bear it? Could Fritz bear it?"

A longing to comfort her, to dispel her sadness, surged through Nathan's breast. He must ease that troubled heart, restore the wonted gaiety to those dear eyes. "The world's changed a bit, Julie," he said gently. "Especially here in England. We aren't living in the Jew street any more. And they're lifting other chains from us, too..... Perhaps—"

(To Be Continued To-morrow)

A KEYHOLE PORTRAIT OF GEORGE ARLISS

He's billed as "Mr. George Arliss"—a rare mark of respect. Hollywood—and the world at large—regard him with veneration as a distinguished actor—and gentleman—but to his wife and his valet he's just a small boy—to be loved — cuddled — and ordered around. He's had his wife—Florence—for thirty years—and his valet—Jenner—for twenty-five—with others he has a mind of his own—is a decided individualist—but these two have the Indian sign on him—they're his real bosses—and he does what they tell him to do.

He's 67—has been an actor for forty-three years—thirty of them in America—yet hates to be called "a veteran of the stage"—burns when he's classed with oldtimers—wants to be considered a contemporary. His current popularity on the screen—and his box office value—justify that wish

Jenner is jealously devoted to Arliss—resents any one else who does anything for him—even Mrs. Arliss—hence valet and wife are constantly at odds

Arliss always has tea on the set—promptly at 4:30—quits promptly at 4.30 Jenner sees to that—he's even been known to snatch a wig off Arliss in the middle of a scene—so he couldn't get big hearted—and work five minutes has never been known to break it—yet always carries a spare—it's worn deep grooves above and below his right eye.

Makes a smaller salary than many lesser stars — carries his money in a purse—and makes no secret of his frugality. The malicious call him tight—yet he buys gifts for every one in his company at the close of a picture—Is extremely fussy about portrait photographs—and rarely satisfied with them Wears high heels to increase his height—Is still subject to seasickness—though he's crossed the ocean many times.

Seldom attends large social affairs—though he did turn out for the Screen Actors' Guild ball—Arrived at 8—because that time was stated on the tickets—No one else got there till 9 or 10 to his extreme astonishment and annoyance—Though he likes meat, has been a vegetarian for years Has a violent aversion to buttermilk. Isn't a teetotaler. Smokes anything and everything—cigars—cigarettes—and pipes.

First saw his wife in a London play—was attracted by her pretty arms—fell in love with her—but couldn't get nerve to propose—till a rainstorm marooned them in a dark theatre. She appears in most of his pictures—but he won't let her play any role save that of his wife—and that only when the story calls for a happy marriage. His only exercise is walking. Doesn't care for any sport. Handwriting is totally illegible. Is a stickler for diction—and always rehearses his supporting cast. Don't miss his "The House of Rothschild"—it's his greatest picture to date.

Strawberry Charlotte

Fresh, ripe strawberries may be made into a delicious cold sweet in the following way. Mash a pint of fruit and rub this through a sieve. Line a China mould with sponge fingers. Soak half a packet of gelatine in a third of a cupful of cold water till soft; then pour over this half a cupful of boiling water, a cupful of sugar, and the juice of a lemon. Strain, add to the strawberry pulp and set aside to cool. Beat three egg-whites till stiff and when the strawberry jelly is beginning to set beat it till light, fold in the stiff whites, and then beat it all together until the mixture is stiff enough to drop from the spoon. Pour into the mould to set. The egg-yolks may be made into a custard flavoured with vanilla to pour round the jelly when this is turned out.

A Jelly Roll

Those who have had several unsuccessful attempts at making a jelly roll will find that the following method is quick, simple, and successful. Beat the whites of two eggs to a stiff froth. Add half a cupful of sugar to the well-beaten yolks, and, beating continually, add vanilla flavouring and one tablespoonful of water. Then whip in the egg whites as lightly as possible, half a teaspoonful of baking powder, and half a cupful of flour. Line a warm pan with waxed paper and pour in the mixture. Bake in a quick oven and turn out on a wet cloth. Remove the paper and spread with jelly. Roll up quickly. The roll will come easily out of the tin if it is placed on a wet cloth for a second.

Vegetarian Dishes—To Try

MOCK SALMON STEAKS

Ingredients: ½ lb. of mashed potatoes, 2 oz. of cold boiled rice, 1 oz. of butter, 1 teaspoonful of grated onion, a pinch of mace, 2 oz. of white bread-crumbs, 1 teacup of very red tomato puree, 1 teacup of milk. Fry the onion in butter, add the milk, and when it boils add the rice and mace, then the potatoes and crumbs, and the totmato puree, lastly the eggs, mix well together. Season, set to cool, form into the shape of small steaks, fold in greased paper and grill, or bread-crumb and fry. Serve with tartare sauce, and plain boiled potatoes.

CHEESE AND SEMOLINA

4 oz. of cheese, a breakfastcup of milk, 1 oz. of semolina, 2 eggs. Bring the milk to the boil and stir in the semolina. Cook till it thickens, remove from the fire and stir in the cheese, a pinch of cayenne, and the yolks of the eggs beaten up. Beat the whites stiffly, and mix in lightly. Turn into a buttered pudding dish and bake gently till ready about 30 minutes. Serve with fried brinjals.

GINGER PEARS

Peel and core some large pears, then stuff them with chopped preserved ginger. Place them close together in a baking dish, pour over them just a little hot water and bake slowly till tender—this will take some hours, 3 or 4, according to the kinds of pears. When cooked put them carefully on a glass dish, and pour over them a nicely made custard or some whipped cream. Serve cold.

TO-DAY'S RECIPE

Horseradish Sauce (for Beef)

Melt a tablespoonful of gelatine in a gill and a half of water, add a tablespoonful of lemon juice and half a teaspoonful salt. When the mixture begins to thicken fold in a third of a cup of grated horseradish (fresh) and a gill of whipped cream or condensed milk. Add a little chopped pickle if liked and serve sprinkled with chopped parsley.

Mint Jelly (for Lamb)

Boil half a pound of sugar in half a pint of vinegar for five minutes, and add a tablespoonful of melted gelatine. Add salt, paprika and green colouring matter and a cup of finely chopped mint leaves. Let it stand for five minutes, then strain into individual moulds.

Tomato Cheese Loaf (for Chicken)

Make some tomato jelly by boiling a pint of tomato pulp with salt, pepper, and some celery salt, add a tablespoonful of melted gelatine and a tablespoonful each of vinegar and onion juice. Strain equally into three flat tins of the same size. When firm spread one layer with finely chopped ham mixed with mustard and mayonnaise, put on the second layer of jelly, spread with cream cheese mixed with a little cream or milk, some seasonings and chopped olive, and finish with last layer of jelly. Serve with lettuce and tomatoes.

Hollandaise (for Boiled Fish)

Melt whatever quantity of butter is desired, say ¼ lb. Throw in a liberal amount of salt and beat it till it be comes frothy. Pour into a warmed sauce boat and serve with the fish course.

CHOCOLATE RECIPES

Chocolate Mould

1 quart milk
2 level tablespoons cocoa
4 level tablespoons sugar
About 6 level tablespoons cornflour
Few drops essence of vanilla

Mix sugar and cocoa together and moisten with some cold milk. Bring rest of milk to boiling point and add cocoa mixture to it. Moisten cornflour with cold water, add small quantity of boiling milk to it, and then add cornflour gradually to boiling milk. Cook quickly for about five minutes, stirring well; take off and add essence. Pour into mould. When quite cold, turn out and serve. Sufficient for six or seven people.

If desired, this may be set in jelly glasses, and when cold, thick cream served on top.

Chocolate Drop Cakes

½ lb. butter
1 cup flour
2 tablespoons cocoa
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup evaporated milk
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 eggs

Chocolate Icing

4 tablespoons cocoa
½ cup evaporated milk
¾ cup sugar
Vanilla

Mix sugar and butter to a cream. Add eggs one at a time, mixing five minutes before adding each egg. When both eggs have been well mixed, add half the milk. Now sift the flour, cocoa, and baking powder together and add to butter, sugar, and egg mixture. Then pour in the rest of the milk and the vanilla. Mix lightly. Drop into well-greased muffin tins and bake in hot oven about fifteen minutes. When cold cover with chocolate icing.

COOKERY NOOK

Here are two soups from the popular tomato, the first very simple, the second a little more elaborate.

Slice a couple of large onions and cook them slowly in pork fat for a few minutes. Do not brown them. Add six quartered tomatoes, and cook together for a minute or two longer. Add a pint and a half of boiling water, some salt, and plenty of pepper. Boil, and then simmer until the tomatoes are done, then pass the soup through a sieve and serve.

A little cooked vermicelli might be added as a garnish.

Cut in fairly fine pieces an ounce of breast of bacon, a very small carrot, half an onion, and add a tiny sprig of thyme and a small piece of bayleaf. Fry these in an ounce of butter and then add eight medium-sized tomatoes, without their skins and juice and cut in smallish pieces, two ounces and a half of rice and a pint of white stock.

Cook gently till the tomatoes are done, and then rub through a very fine sieve. Moisten with enough stock or consomme to get the right thickness, and finish, off the fire, with a couple of ounces of butter.

Chocolate Egg Custard

1 quart scalded milk
4 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons cocoa
¼ teaspoon salt
4 eggs
1 teaspoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix the cocoa to a smooth paste in a little milk. Mix cornstarch in a little cold milk and cook in quart of scalded milk ten minutes; add the cocoa paste and mix well. Beat eggs and sugar together, pour the boiled milk over it and cook until thick enough to stick to spoon. Remove and set in cold water. Stir often until almost cold; add vanilla and strain into individual glasses or custard cups. Serve with cake, macaroons or fruit. A spoonful of thick cream sweetened with a little sugar dropped on top of each portion is delicious.

Crab Mousse

Breakfast cup of flaked crab (fresh or canned); 2 tablespoons whipped cream; 3 teaspoons powdered gelatine; ½ teaspoon lemon juice; 1 teaspoon chopped parsley. Cayenne, salt, pepper to taste. Breakfast cup hot water.

Dissolve gelatine in hot water. Place crab, whipped cream, lemon juice, parsley in basin with seasonings. Pour in gelatine, mix thoroughly. Pour into mould and set in refrigerator or cold place. Unmould on dish of green salad.

Lobster, salmon, prawns or shrimps can be substituted for crab.

Apricot Mousse

1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
4 tablespoons cold water
1 cup mashed cooked apricots
1/3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
⅛ teaspoon salt
2/3 cup diced marshmallows
1 cup whipped cream.

Soak gelatin in water 5 minutes. Dissolve over hot water. Cool. Add rest of ingredients excepting cream; chill overnight in ice box. In the morning add cream and pour into tray in mechanical refrigerator. In four hours this dessert will be frozen.

Use for Whiting

It is sometimes difficult to banish entirely the odour which clings to utensils which have been used in the preparation of fish or onions, particularly during the hot days. The best medium for this purpose is ordinary whiting powdered finely. It is a good plan to keep a jar full of whiting at hand in the kitchen for this purpose. A damp cloth sprinkled with whiting and applied to the articles will quickly banish any unpleasant taints. It is also used in a similar manner for removing stains from white or cream paintwork. It is most effective and will not injure the surface.

'Flu Attack Beaten!

C/o. Post Office,
HORNSBY, N.S.W.

Dear Sirs,
I just feel that I must write and tell you how glad I am that 'ASPRO' Tablets were ever made or manufactured. It is so true that they break up a COLD or 'FLU. A while ago I caught a very BAD COLD and 'FLU. I commenced taking 'ASPRO' I also took eucalyptus on sugar. I managed to get to a chemist for some medicine. He asked me what I had been taking. I told him. He then told me not to take much eucalyptus, but to INHALE as much as I liked. "But," said he, "had it not been for ASPRO you would not be in this shop to-day, but in bed." He was a great believer in 'ASPRO.' Then two weeks ago I caught another BAD COLD, but by taking 'ASPRO' three times a day, I managed to break the cold and get well.
Yours sincerely,
(Mrs.) M. FLAVEL.

GERMAN SHIPPING UNDER HITLER

Whole Industry Governed By One Leader

Germany is always worth watching.

Many of her new ideas may be quite unsuitable for us. Most of them are. But that is no reason why they should not be studied. For at the worst we shall learn what to avoid; and we are pretty certain to see something worth bearing in mind.

It must, however, be remembered that the economic side of National Socialism is still more or less undecided. No one knows—Hitler himself does not know—how far the State is going to interfere in industry and commerce. That will depend on the political development and swing—upon whether the big industrialists and the land-owning junkers get the upper hand or the more revolutionary members of the party. At present it would appear that the junkers will have it and that ultimately the old Prussian ideas will prevail.

In the meantime the new organisation of shipping under the Hitler system of leaders has been proclaimed.

GROUP SYSTEM

By the law of February 27, 1934, the whole commerce and industry of Germany is divided up into thirteen chief groups. Of these groups shipping is No. 12. The other groups such as engineering, banking, agriculture, etc., etc., are similary treated and each chief group is provided with a leader. The Fuehrer or Leader idea is the essence of Hitlerism. The whole system consists of a hierarchy of leaders provided by the State—Hitler being the supreme leader of all.

Each of these chief groups is divided into branches, each of which again has a subordinate leader and the branches are again divided into sections similarly led.

Shipping is divided into 7 branches, viz., shipowning, shipbroking, coastwise shipping, pilotage, ports and harbours, technical experts and miscellaneous activities which include training-ships, lifeboats, sailors' unions, etc.

The leader of the whole shipping group, just appointed, is councillor of State Essberger, whilst the vice-leader is Dr. R. Firle.

Each of these seven branches of shipping in Germany have chambers or unions something like our chambers of shipping, and it is upon these that the organisation is founded. The chief chamber or union of each branch is called the Dach or roof organisation, because it covers all the local chambers which exist at the various ports as well. Both the "roof" chamber and the local chambers are separately included in the organisation.

In each of the chambers, both "Roof" and local, one of its members is nominated by Essberger as leader. And these leaders can be removed by him at any time. In this way a firm grip of the whole industry is maintained. These leaders have, under their superior leader, absolute power. Their orders are law and must be obeyed.

COURTS OF HONOUR

In addition to this, so-called courts of honour have been set up at headquarters, one of whose functions is to inquire into the conduct of any shipowner, shipbroker or other person in any of the branches whose conduct is considered to be injurious to the welfare of shipping and to get rid of him. The chambers are provided from above with model statutes and any breach of these by any member is also brought before the court of honour to be dealt with.

The whole detailed scheme has now been published, and though it is unnecessary here to give official particulars of each of the seven branches it is worth while to give a few examples.

For the shipowning branch, the vice-leader who represents Essberger is M. Oboussier. The "Roof" chamber is the Union of German Shipowners. The local chambers at a few of the German ports are: Bremen—The Bremen Shipowning Union; Flensburg—The Shipowning Union for the District and Chamber of Commerce of Flensburg.

In the case of shipbroking F. Caulier-Einsbeke is the vice-Leader. The "Roof" Chamber is the Central Union of Shipbrokers. At Hamburg the local Chamber is the Union of Hamburg Shipbrokers. At Stettin it is the Sea-Shipping Union. Shipbroking Department.

The above examples show how all the seven branches are brought under the dictatorship and cover every shipping activity.

So far this dictator organisation has not actually proceeded far in reforming the industry. It is ready to act, but so far few orders from above have been forthcoming. It has, of course, only just been set up. Recently terms of agreement between touring lines and coastwise shipping were laid down and this is claimed to be an instance of the benefits yet to come. But upon the whole, the present policy is to allow the "Roof" Chamber of each branch of shipping to manage the affairs of the branch necessary and for the dictatorship not to interfere except in matters of essential importance to the whole economic structure of the country.—John Sanderson in the Nautical Magazine.

"AUNT SALLY"

Comedy At The Queen's

Cicely Courtneidge, the famous British comedienne, has the leading role in the spicy comedy "Aunt Sally" which opened at the Queen's Theatre yesterday. The picture affords Cicely plenty of opportunity to exploit her brilliant versatility, and as a result, it provides excellent entertainment.

Set with music, songs and dance, the picture concerns the efforts of an unknown cabaret singer, Sally Bird (Cicely Courtneidge) to break into fame in a new London night club owned by Mike Kelly (Sam Hardy).

At her first attempt, she is thrown out of the club, but by a clever ruse she again returns, this time as a famous French actress. She is thus engaged to star in the cabaret and eventually proves an enormous success. She soon becomes, however, a victim of gangsters and the way in which she escapes, provides many a laughter.

Besides the brilliant performance of Cicely Courtneidge and the many delightful sequences in the picture, there are also many musical numbers which are thoroughly enjoyable.

In short, "Aunt Sally" is a picture worth seeing.

"TERROR TRAIL"

At The Oriental

Tom Mix, dean of all western stars, appears in "Terror Trail" showing at the Oriental Theatre on Friday and Saturday. Universal has spared no expense in supplying a splendid supporting cast and beautiful backgrounds of mountain scenery and western plains.

The story has humour aplenty. While there is a quartette of famous screen heavies—Francis McDonald, Bob Kortman, John St. Polis and Frank Brownlee, who acquit themselves fiendishly as usual—the imititable comic Raymond Hatton, virtually stars in his role of Lucky Dawson, the gambler who'll bet on anything. His drinking and shooting scene is one of the funniest ever seen in a western film.

Arthur Rankin does an excellent job as the weakling brother of the heroine, who finally manages to throw off the yoke imposed by the gang, and to go straight. Too much cannot be said for Naomi Judge, the pretty girl who, raised on the Dakota plains, knows exactly how a western girl should act.

Tony, Junior, Tom's new mount, is a dead-ringer for Tony and does a great job.

FIGHT AGAINST SNOBBERY

In "Finishing School"

A misguided girl's pathetic romance and struggle against odds in an ultra-exclusive girl's boarding school is the basis of "Finishing School," RKO-Radio Picture which blases a new theme trail in modern screen drama, showing at the King's Theatre.

It is a daring story of young love, adult hypocrisy and the ultimate triumph of right thinking in the face of overwhelming snobbery.

For the first time in an American made film, societymad mothers and profiteering boarding schools are revealed as a menace.

Frances Dee, Billie Burke, Ginger Rogers and Bruce Cabot head an outstanding cast of capable players. The plot revolves around Virginia Radcliff, sweet, sensitive and unlearned in the ways of the world, is suddenly thrust into the society of girls who are past masters in petting, drinking and wild parties, although nominally under the discipline boasting a perfect atmosphere.

These girls, students at the smart academy where Virginia has been placed by her silly, vain, society butterfly mother, trick Virginia into attending a secret rendezvous with some sporty college boys.

While attempting to escape from the unwelcome advances of one of them, Virginia meets Ralph MacFarland, a struggling doctor.

The secret romance that blossoms between the boy and girl is discovered and the girl is turned from the school in disgrace. A stirring drama unfolds from this point to the final climax.

Frances Dee is heralded as never more charming than in the role of Virginia. Titian-haired Ginger Rogers, vivacious and alluring, provides the touch of comedy to the picture. Billie Burke is cast as Virginia's vain, shallow mother, and Bruce Cabot is the young doctor.

"HI, NELLIE!"

At The Alhambra To-day

"It's swell," said Mervyn LeRoy. "Now I've got someone to do my worrying for me."

"You can't have him worrying for you all the time," Paul Muni objected. "He's got to do some for me."

So it was decided that Ned Sparks should worry ten minutes for Mervyn, who was directing "Hi, Nellie," the Warner Bros. picture opening to-day at the Alhambra Theatre, then ten minutes for Muni, who was starring in it, and so on down the list. There were even a few minutes of worrying allotted each day to Sidney Sutherland and Abem Finkel who dramatized the story by Roy Chanslor for the screen. But not many minutes. Everybody agreed that they had already done their job.

Ned Sparks, he of the eternally downcast "pan," looks like the worrying kind. As a matter of fact, he's not at all. He protests that at heart he's really one of the Happiness Boys. Despite Mervyn LeRoy's glee at finding some one in his troupe to take care of all the worries, Ned says he'd be no good at that sort of thing.

"To Tell the truth," he said, with all that Sparksian solemnity, "there's always a little bird singing in my heart. And I'm very kind to old people. You'd never guess it, I suppose." He sighed deeply with resignation, and went on worrying for the company.

In addition to worrying, Sparks plays the role of an ace reporter in this exciting newspaper drama. Others in the cast are Glenda Farrell, Robert Barrat, Kathryn Sergava and Hobart Cavanaugh.

REFUSED £800 A WEEK

An Offer To Shirley Temple

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 17.

Shirley Temple, the six-year-old film star, has been offered £83,200 for her "professional services" for two years—and the offer has been rejected.

According to her father (quoted by a correspondent from Hollywood), Shirley was offered £800 a week for two years with £10,000 in cash, payable at once, to bind the contract.

"I told the man who made the offer that Shirley was already under contract," Mr. Temple says.

"His plan was to use her in wireless broadcasts, personal appearances, and to boost her earning capacity in films."

Shirley Temple is said to be receiving now a salary of ("only") £240 a week.

SOLDIER PHILOSOPHER

(Special Air-Mail Service).

London, Oct. 17.

Gen. Smuts, whose Rectorial address at St. Andrews contained so eloquent an appeal for human freedom, was brought up in the Liberal Cambridge tradition of the late Victorian era.

When he was an undergraduate at Christ's, although he read Law, he had the reputation of being one of the most promising and brilliant of undergraduate philosophers.

This humanist approach to life has survived the enforced military discipline of two wars.

In spite of his dislike of regimentation and militarism, there can be no question of Gen. Smuts's reputation as a fine.

"CHAINED"

A Crawford-Gable Picture

Joan Crawford and Clark Gable are together again, this time in one of the most powerful dramatic vehicles of the year. The picture, directed by Clarence Brown, is entitled "Chained" and is coming on Sunday to the Queen's Theatre. A special Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, it is lavishly mounted and painstakingly produced. The swift-moving story, following the new trend, was especially written for the screen by Edgar Selwyn and adapted by John Lee Mahin.

The supporting cast is exceptional, with Otto Kruger, Una O'Connor, Suart Erwin, and Marjorie Gateson prominently cast. But chief honours go to the co-stars, who make living characters out of their separate roles, and weave a deep-hued tapestry of the poignant romance of Diane and Mike. The locale of the film, ever shifting, covers half of the Western hemisphere, moving from New York to shipboard, to Buenos Aires, to a South American ranch, back to New York and thus North to a Lake Placid resort. It is the kind of fare critics have been crying for: swift credible, well mounted, well acted and, above all, entertaining.

LONDON'S NEW RECORDER

Judge Gregory, K.C.

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 17.

Judge Holman Gregory, K.C., has been elected as Recorder of the City of London by the Court of Aldermen in place of the late Sir Ernest Wild, at a salary of £4,000 a year. The choice was made at a special meeting of the Court held at Guildhall, at which Lord Wakefield, as Acting Lord Mayor, presided.

Lord Wakefield said that at the request of his brethren he nominated Mr. Holman Gregory for appointment to the office of Recorder.

The Court agreed, and Lord Wakefield then formally declared Mr. Gregory duly elected, "provided always that if the said Holman Gregory shall not be appointed by his Majesty to exercise judicial functions the said election shall be null and void of no effect."

The Court resolved to instruct the Town Clerk to ask the Lord Chancellor that the King might be graciously pleased to appoint Mr. Gregory to exercise judicial functions.

Mr. Sheriff Pears was invited to take a seat in the Court during his Shrievalty.

Sir George Truscott said that the Court would be glad to hear that the Lord Mayor (who was congratulated on the baronetcy conferred on him by the King) continued to make progress.

Judge Holman Gregory, who is 70 years of age, was called to the Bar by the Middle Temple in 1897, having previously practised as a solicitor in his native city of Bristol. He became a bencher in 1920. He was recorder successively of Bath and Bristol, and represented South Derbyshire as a Liberal in the House of Commons for four years. Mr. Gregory succeeded the late Judge Atherley-Jones as Judge of the Mayor's and City of London Court in 1929 and was appointed Common Serjeant in place of the late Sir Henry Dickens two years ago.

ARSENIC POISONING CASE CONTINUED

Pun Cho-on who is charged with the murder by arsenic poisoning of Chick Wing a vegetable gardener of Tai Hom village, near Kowloon City was again brought before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday. The Assistant Attorney General Mr. J. A. Fraser is prosecuting.

Chinese Detective Cham Lam gave evidence with reference to a complaint received on August 6 and the subsequent enquiries and the arrest of the accused.

Kong Tim and Chang Nai, two fokis who were working for the deceased on various odd jobs told the court of the accused's relations with the deceased's wife. He was seen on various occasions laughing and joking with her and at times hitting each other playfully and would cease when they were sighted. Deceased and his wife were also noticed quarreling frequently. Kong Tim remarked that he had tea with the deceased on August 6 and he was then quite normal and did not complain of any sickness. There was no jealousy between the accused and the deceased as far as he knew.

After Lo Yui Kwan the Chinese interpreter at Yaumati Police Station had given evidence regarding the statements the accused made before and after Chick Wing's death the case was adjourned till to-day.

POSITION OF A PARTNER

At the Supreme Court yesterday, a special case stated by consent of both parties, and involving a sum of $20,000, was heard by the Chief Justice, Mr. A. D. A. MacGregor.

The case arose from long litigation hitherto confined to chambers in which the Yick On Bank had sued and obtained judgment against the Shin Tai Hong Firm, and Ching Keng-man Ng Tsz-fung, and Yu Cheuk-sang.

Judgment had been given in chambers on two promissory notes for $10,000 each signed in July and August last year.

The present issue before the court was: Whether the plaintiffs were debarred in law from proceeding further against the fourth defendant, Yu Cheuk-sang, in the action, costs of the special case to be borne by the party against whom the Court decided on this question.

Mr. Eldon Potter, K.C., and Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C., instructed by Mr. F. H. Loseby, of Russ and Co., represented the Bank, and Mr. D. McNeill and Mr. H. C. Macnamara, instructed by Mr. M. K. Lo, of Lo and Lo, appeared for Yu Cheuk-sang.

After legal submissions had been made by Counsels on both sides the case was adjourned.

A RETURNED BANISHEE

When Kwong Yam, 56, appeared before Mr. MacFadyen at Central Magistracy yesterday, it was stated that he had returned to the Colony, contrary to a banishment order, and after evidence was taken the defendant was committed to stand his trial at the next Criminal Sessions.

Detective Sergeant Moran, in evidence stated that Kwong Yam was banished for life on January 25, 1929. He was, however, seen in the Colony on Octber 31, last and arrested, and at present was undergoing prison sentence for six months on a charge of larceny. Witness went on to say that the defendant had had four previous convictions.

Asked if he wished to call any witnesses on his behalf, defendant answered in the negative, and elected to make a statement from the dock. He said he had an aged mother to support and pleaded for "a lighter sentence."

On the application of Mr. T. P. K. Kemble, solicitor for the defence, the case against Wong Hing, a stoker on board the s.s. Lung Shan, who was charged with importing 300 Yuan Shi-kai dollars from Canton into the Colony, unmanifested, was remanded until to-day, by Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy yesterday.

Revenue-Officer Grimmitt stated that accused refused to be searched when he was arrested on Tuesday, and that he had the bag containing the silver dollars under is arm.

The remand case in which Fung Kwan-lum, a cloth artist, was charged with the possession of 200 rounds of ammunition without a licence from the Hon. I. G. P., was withdrawn by the police before Mr. MacFadyen in the Central Magistracy yesterday. The ammunition was confiscated. It will be recalled that a small Chinese girl discovered the arms in a stairway of No. 115 Des Voeux Road and called the attention of the defendant to it. A Chinese detective who happened to be nearby arrested him.

Fines totalling $60, in default six weeks' imprisonment, were imposed by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday on Ng Chuen, who appeared on four charges, for having in his possession a bottle of dutiable liquor, selling intoxicating liquor without a license, selling adulterated liquor, and having in his possession a bottle bearing a false brandy label.

Yuet Loong-chan, of No. 16 Wing Lok Street, was fined $25 by Mr. Hamilton in the Central Police Court yesterday for failing to make an export declaration within the period of seven days, of the export of 300 bags of white salt, two cases of wooden ware, 30 tins of matches, two cases of cotton cloth, two cases of cotton vests and 20 packages of old gunny bags, aboard the steamer Touraine bound for Cebu. Mr. J. Barrow, Assistant Superintendent of Imports and Exports, prosecuted.

MALAYA'S NEW GOVERNOR

Official Reception Prepared

Preparations for the arrival of the new Governor Sir Shenton Thomas, have been made all over Malaya.

Sir Shenton is arriving in Penang to-day, by the P. and O. "Ranpura" and will be met by the Hon'ble Mr. A. Goodman, whence H.E., Lady Thomas and Miss Bridget Thomas will continue their voyage to Singapore.

As the "Ranpura" slips slowly past the forts into Singapore's wonderful harbour R. A. F. 'planes will swoop in salute over the mail steamer. Once alongside, the official deputation, headed by the Hon'ble Mr. Andrew Caldecott, the Officer Administering the Government, will board the ship and greet the new Governor.

Salute Of Guns

Sir Shenton will then disembark on the seaward side and a Government launch will take him to Clifford Pier and the customary salute of guns will be fired from Fort Canning and a military band will strike up the National Anthem.

His Excellency will then inspect the guard of honour accompanied by the G.O.C., Major-General Lewin.

Accompanied by his wife and daughters, His Excellency will then drive to the Legislative Council Chamber where he will be met by the leading Unofficials of the Colony, representatives of the Services, the Consular Services and the Civil Service.

Oath Of Office

Sir Walter Huggard, the Chief Justice of the Colony, clad in scarlet robe and wig will administer the oath of office after the formal reading of the Governor's Commission from H's Majesty's representative in Malaya.

The Singapore Municipal Commissioners, the Singapore Chamber of Commerce, the S.S. (Singapore) Association and bodies representing the Malay, Straits Chinese, Indian Eurasian and Chinese communities will then present addresses of welcome to Sir Shenton.

According to a London correspondent Sir Shenton and Lady Thomas were the chief guest at a reception given in their honour by the students from the Malayan Committee of the Victoria League. A large number of Malayan students and their friends were present, and it was noticed that both Sir Shenton and Lady Thomas made a point of speaking with every student, and, indeed, with everyone in the room.

Sir Charles and Lady Bailey received Sir Shenton and Lady Thomas and effected the many introductions, and among the distinguished people present were Sir Laurence and Lady Guillemard and Sir Neill Malcolm, President of the British North Borneo (Chartered) Company.

"My wife and I," said Sir Laurence Guillemard "think that Malaya is very fortunate indeed in having such a splendid Governor and High Commissioner as Sir Shenton Thomas. Yes, exceedingly lucky."

Major-General Sir Neill Malcolm agreed in the opinion, and added that he himself was leaving England shortly on a visit to Malaya, the Dutch East Indies and B.N.B. and was much looking forward to seeing his many old friends out East again.

THE CHINESE CHAMBER

Monthly Committee Meeting

The Chinese General Chamber of Commerce held their monthly committee meeting at the Chamber's Headquarters yesterday afternoon, when owing to the indisposition of Mr. Wong Kwong Tin, the Chairman, Mr. Lee Sing Kui took the chair.

Among those present were Mr. Lee Sing Kui (Vice-Chairman), Mr. Lui Yam Shuen (Treasurer), Mr. Chan Ping Au (Secretary), Dr. Li Ping Sum, Messrs. Lau King Ching, Chung Kit Hing, So Chiu, Kwan Wan Pak, Ko Wing Kwok, Kong Shui Ying, Chan Shiu Foon, Chan Tat Sam, Wong Kong Chi, Chiu Kwok Hing, Chan Kim Tong, Lam Wah Lap, Chung Chi Lam, Chiu Chiu Fan, Au Chak Sum, Li Yiu Tong, Yung Koon Man, Mok Lin, Chan Kam Por, Lau Ngan Fan, Sinn Pui Kwan and representatives of many hongs, firms and different associations and guilds.

Agents Wanted

The Secretary informed the meeting that a large rubber manufacturer from Penang had sent a letter to the Chamber requesting them to find reliable local Chinese manufacturers for their rubber and rubber goods.

Wine merchant in England had also written to the Chamber requesting them to recommend good, and influential Chinese agents or representatives for their wine and spirit.

Many firms in different countries also applied to the Chamber to recommend good markets for their principal products. It was stated that replies to the requests had already been sent.

Chamber's Library

It was decided to increase the annual Library allowance, provided the Library Committee make a monthly report to the Chamber.

Mr. Lam Wah Lap, Secretary of the local Fruit and Vegetables Association, informed the Chamber of the Canton Government's resumption of several vegetable "lans" (agencies) at Ma Cho Po, Five Genii Gate, Canton City, for new road making, the petitioner appealed to the Chamber to request the Canton Government to withdraw the resumption order or postpone the date of resumption. This request was acceeded to.

British Industries Fair

During the meeting the Secretary announced that a letter together with catalogues had been sent to the Chamber by the British Trade Representative, informing them that the British Industries Fair will, as usual, be held at the White City, London, from 18th February to 1st March, 1935, and that another exhibition of Metals and Machinery will be held at Birmingham, from 20th to the end of May the same year, and stating that any Chinese merchant, who desires to participate or visit these two exhibitions, should forward his name to the Chamber, where particulars and detailed information would be supplied.

Before the conclusion of the meeting, the Secretary announced that the Hong Kong University Authorities had informed the Chamber that they had received with gratitude their yearly contribution of $1,000 for last year and hoped that they would soon forward this year's contribution so as to enable them to purchase books etc. for the Library of the Commercial Department. Regarding the two proposed scholarships for the students who graduate in Commerce and Banking, the University Authorities quite agreed with the Chamber's proposal, and hoped that these scholarships would be established next year.

Several new firms and manufacturers applied for membership; these were passed unanimously.

LICENSING BOARD'S SESSION

Thirty-two Liquor Licences Granted

At a meeting of the Licensing Board held in the Council Chamber yesterday no fewer than thirty four applications came up for consideration. A good number were renewals and these were granted, while in several cases objections raised by the Fire Brigade led to the conditional granting of licenses. In two cases the applications were adjourned for consideration.

The attorney General, the Hon. Mr. R. E. Lindsell presided and there were present, Col. H. B. L. Dowbiggin, the Hon. Mr. J. Owen Hughes, Mr. J. M. Wong, Mr. J. L. MacPherson and Mr. W. M. Thomson (secretary).

Complaints From Kowloon

The following Publican Licences were granted:—Repulse Bay Hotel (Mr. T. J. Mildren), Hong Kong Hotel (Mr. A. G. Piovanelli), Peninsula Hotel (Mr. A. K. Dimond), Palace Hotel (Mr. I. L. Goldenberg), Kowloon Hotel (Mr. Cheung Kiu Fong).

Publican Licences (without Bar) were granted to the following: St. Francis Hotel (Mr. R. H. Waller), Exchange Restaurant (Mr. R. J. Jones), Hotel Cecil (Mr. Chan Wai Chuen), Marcel Cafe (Mr. David Blumenthal), Gloucester Building (Mr. A. F. Gladstone) and David's Cafeteria (Mr. C. C. Francis).

Hotel Keeper's Adjunct Licence:—Peak Hotel (Miss H. A. Harry), Airlie Hotel (Mr. A. Ogilvie), Tung Shan Hotel (Mr. Chau Sing Chi), Hotel Asia (Mr. Tsoi Kam Tang), Empress Hotel (Mr. Ma Tau Nam), Mee Chow Hotel (Mr. Yu Tung Wai), The Great China Hotel (Mr. Chan Cheuk Wan), Hotel Nathan (Mr. Mui Man), New Asia Hotel (Mr. Peter Tong), Luk Kok Hotel (Mr. Chan Chuck Yin), Tokyo Hotel (Mrs. Y. Kobayashi) Chitose Hotel (Mr. I. Seki), Chitose Kwan Hotel (Mr. J. Morita), Fukuzumi Hotel (Mrs. R. Akiyoshi).

Restaurant Keeper's Adjunct Licence:—Toyoan Hotel (Mr. K. Suhara), Yamakawa Hotel (Mr. T. Yamakawa), Asahi Beer Hall (Mr. K. Suya), Prince's Cafe (Mr. P. K. Leung), South China Restaurant (Mr. Pang Yat Sang), Canadian Confectionary and Bakery Co. (Mr. S. F. Shum) and Jimmy's Annex (Mr. Aaron Landau).

Some Objections

With regard to the application of Lothar Hammann for a Restaurant Keeper's Adjunct Licence at Jimmy's Kitchen at 42-46 Lockhart Road, strong objections were raised by the Police authorities (represented by the Hon. Mr. T. H. King) on the ground that the applicant, who had obtained his licence at the beginning of this year, left the Colony soon after the licence was granted to him and left his business in the care of another man who had subsequently been arrested in Manila for alleged possession of opium. The applicant assured the board that he was now in full charge of the business and that he intended to get a partner very soon. The man in Manila was no longer connected with the business. The Board deferred the consideration of this application for a fortnight for further inquiries to be made by the Hon. I.G.P.

The granting of the licence to the King's Restaurant was also deferred as it appeared that two applications were in fact made. Mr. Lowe appeared for the new applicant and explained that the first applicant was under notice to leave the firm. The Board also deferred this subject for further inquiries.

Too Noisy

The granting of the licence to the Palace Hotel was accompanied by a warning from the Board to the effect that upon further complaints of the place being noisy, the licencee renders himself liable to have his licence cancelled.

The Hon. Mr. King said that complaints have been received from the Police Married Quarters to the effect that the place was quite noisy after 10 p.m. and that apparently the Manager was unable to keep the place under proper control. The last complaint, he said, was received as late as November 2.

Mr. R. H. Cole who appeared on behalf of Mr. Goldenberg, the licencee, gave an undertaking that the noise would be abated in future.

The Marcel Cafe applied for and obtained a Hotel Keeper's Licence where formerly they have had a restaurant license. Mr. D. Blumenthal the applicant explained that it was essential to his business that he should have this wider licence.

Lifts Unsafe ?

Several Chinese hotels were granted licences on condition that they repair their lifts immediately and certificates be furnished to the Board before the end of the year. These included the Empress Hotel, the Hotel Asia, and the Mee Chow Hotel.

A Japanese applicant from Wanchai who was twice convicted this year for selling liquor outside of the hours stipulated on his licence was warned that upon further conviction, his licence would be cancelled.

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE SPEECH DAY

His Excellency The Governor Distributes The Prizes

Advice To Pupils On Good Manners And Traditions

The annual Speech Day of St. Stephen's College was held yesterday, His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., giving away the prizes.

A very successful report for the past year was presented by the Warden, Rev. E. W. L. Martin, who said that the College obtained the best percentage of passes among the larger schools in the last Matriculation Examination.

In the course of his speech, His Excellency congratulated the College on its success in the Matriculation examination and the number of pupils who have entered the University, and advised the students on "the well-known theme of tradition" and good manners.

Founder Of Institution Praised

The Rt. Rev. Bishop Hall presided and among those present were His Excellency the Governor and Lady Peel, accompanied by Capt. Walters, A.D.C., Sir William Hornell, the Hon. M. N. L. Smith, the Hon. Dr. S. W. Ts'o and Mrs. Ts'o, the Hon. Dr. A. W. Wellington (Protector of Chinese, Singapore), Mr. G. R. Sayer (Director of Education), Professor L. Forster, Rev. E. G. Powell, Rev. E. G. Stewart, Messrs. Kwok Siu Lau, Kwok Chan, Ng Wah, Mok Kon Sang, Tang Shiu Kin, Kan Tat Chol, Li Hoi Tung, Tam Siu Hong, Kwok Kay Man and Mok Hing Wing.

In calling upon the Warden of the College to present his report, Bishop Hall said that he was glad to be able, on behalf of the College, to thank His Excellency and Lady Peel in finding time to come out to St. Stephen's College and to distribute the prizes. He also wished on half of the School Council and of the whole School to say how glad they were to have Mr. and Mrs. Martin back again looking so well from their holiday (applause).

"Every wise parent," said the Bishop, "in Hong Kong and in the South Seas, sends their boy to be taken care of by Mr. and Mrs. Martin, and on behalf of the parents I thank them for their care and for the excellent work they have done."

WARDEN'S REPORT

The Warden then presented his report for the year 1934, which was as follows:—

We warmly welcome His Excellency and Lady Peel on this visit to St. Stephen's College which marks the completion of five years of the school at Stanley. We wish to thank His Excellency first for initiating measures in 1930 which have effectively stamped out mosquitoes at Stanley. By this means the old barracks' sites which were so notorious for sickness ninety years ago have become a health resort. Lady Peel will always be remembered among us by her gift of flowering trees, which have greatly beautified our gardens.

Covered Play-ground

We congratulate Mr. F. A. Britton, M.A., and the Staff on splendid work in 1934. Among many improvements is a spacious concrete covered play-ground for use in wet weather. This is the generous gift of Mr. Lam Yam Chuen whom we heartily thank. We thank also Mr. G. B. G. Hull and Mr. Binnie for their kindness in making the plans.

Studies

In the last Matriculation Examination St. Stephen's College obtained the best percentage of passes among the larger schools. Those to be congratulated are Dr. Cho, Messrs A. Ling, B.A., F. A. Britton, M.A., Y. L. Tang, B.Sc., H. C. Asche, M.Sc., C. H. Tam, B.A., J. A. Gaunt, M.A., Mrs. Martin and Miss W. I. Griffin. I include those experienced teachers who gave the students a strong foundation in the lower classes. Of seventeen boys who, obtained the Matriculation Certificate and two the Senior Certificate, thirteen entered Hong Kong University.

Chinese Studies

In that Matriculation Examination every student of St. Stephen's who took Chinese passed in that subject. We have special arrangement of classes for Chinese lessons. The same Staff teach Chinese in the Upper, Middle and Lower forms in consecutive hours. By this means we divide two English forms into four Chinese classes. Classes of C and D grade are very small, which makes for efficient teaching.

The Chinese dux medal is awarded in the Middle School, where twice as many hours are given to Chinese as in the Upper School. This prevents a student from winning two gold medals in one year, which would otherwise be possible. We have to thank Hon. Sir Shou-son Chow for special prizes for Chinese essays and Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall C.M.G. for a gold medal for the Dux in Chinese.

Effective methods of teaching and discipline are our constant aim in all classes. Dr. Cho Yu Chuen (Pong Ngan) is a resident master and others who teach Chinese (as well as English) are Messrs. A. Ling, B.A., C. H. Tam, B.A., and S. K. Lei, B.A.

Scouts and Sports

We have three Patrols of Scouts which give immense delight, and valuable training. For Sports the whole school is divided into four Groups. Keen and healthy competitions in football, athletics, basketball, swimming and tennis take place in their seasons. Debates, concerts, lantern-lectures and discussion-groups are held at week-ends; and to fill in spare time there are clubs for painting, photography, music and radio. Social efforts are represented by the free dispensary in Stanley Village, under the resident school doctor (Major P. S. Stewart) and the support of a doctor by our students in the Tsang Shing District.

Opportunities for Boarders

Hong Kong is famous for its beauty and we thank the Government for a site which is truly magnificent. The quietness and the pure air are conducive to study, and the life of 140 students with a dozen experienced resident Teachers (of whom one-half are Chinese and one-half are English) seems very near to the ideal, for the purposes of education. Added to this are the attractions of modern school buildings, and every facility for sports and recreation, with six tennis courts and increasing facilities for football.

It is not surprising that whereas the school removed to Stanley five years ago with some 70 boarders and 70 day-boys, the day-boys now number only 5 and the boarders amount to 135. Out of this total of 140, Cantonese-speaking students number 67 or almost exactly 50%. Local students form 33% of the school. Other students represent many parts of China and Chinese communities abroad.

The College

St. Stephen's College was founded in 1903 by Chinese gentlemen specially for local Parents who wish their sons to have this kind of education, with moral teaching in a Christian atmosphere. The inclusive fees are $540 per annum, for board, lodging, laundry, sports and tuition. The expenditure and behaviour of students are strictly controlled after consultation with Parents and Guardians.

To-day we thank God for bringing the school to the successful close of its thirty-second year, and in particular for the success of this first five years at Stanley, and the excellent health of Staff and Students.

The prizes were then distributed by His Excellency the Governor.

GOVERNOR'S SPEECH

After the distribution of the prizes, His Excellency addressed the gathering. He said:

It is a great pleasure to my wife and myself to be present at this Prize-giving to-day. It is the first formal official visit that I have paid to the College but my wife and I paid an informal visit a year or two ago and were most interested in all that we saw. I have always been greatly impressed by the work done by the College and have watched its career with great interest. The Warden's report to which we have just listened shows a fine record of progress during the past five years that this Institution has been at Stanley.

I congratulate it especially on the outstanding success which it achieved in the Matriculation Examination and on the number of pupils who have entered the University. I also congratulate it on the success which it has attained in the teaching of Chinese. This is a very difficult question and I have always felt it by no means an easy problem to solve in this Colony. There can be no doubt that it is right that the Chinese should have an adequate knowledge of their own language with all the culture which it brings and it is always desirable that they should if possible acquire a good knowledge of English which language is spoken to-day to such a large extent throughout the world. The difficulty has always been to find time in a boy's curriculum to teach him both these languages without leaving him in the position of not having an adequate knowledge of either. This College seems to have succeeded to a large extent in solving the problem and I trust that the success which it has achieved in the past will continue.

The Scout Movement

I am glad that the College is a strong supporter of the Scout Movement and that it pays considerable attention to various forms of sport. Its activities are very wide and there is no doubt that these can be made more comprehensive in a boarding school such as this than in the average day school.

I also wish to express my appreciation both on behalf of the Government and the Colony for the very valuable work which Dr. Stewart and the students have done in connection with the dispensary in Stanley Village. It is an excellent idea of social service especially service of such a useful nature. I have no doubt that the teaching of simple hygiene is part of the curriculum of the College.

The College was founded in 1903 and was a most praise-worthy effort on the part of the founders to provide for this Colony a public school on the lines as understood in England. That it has achieved notable success as such is shown by the fact that the proportion of boarders has now reached the high figure of 96% thus justifying the wisdom and foresight of those who initiated the scheme. It is a great thing to have successfully launched such an Institution in this Colony. There is no doubt that such a School is of great influence in forming the character of its pupils. Moreover life in a community such a public school affords is of immense advantage. On these grounds in particular it is to be commended to such parents as can manage it to send their boys here.

Notable Past Pupils

It is of great interest that we still have with us to-day in the Colony one survivor of the original founders in my friend, The Hon. Dr. S. W. Ts'o. He has every reason to be proud of the part which he took in originating the scheme. The school has produced notable citizens among whom I might mention The Honourable Mr. T. N. Chau, a Member of our Colony's Legislative Council. It has also provided three out of four Government Inspectors of Vernacular Schools and among others the Headmaster of the Vernacular Middle School. Its influence reaches far afield and its pupils comprise some 50% of overseas Chinese. It must be very gratifying to the College that old boys have made their mark both in China and Malaya.

The original institution started in Bonham Road but came to Stanley five years ago prepared apparently to face the risk of a site which had had a bad history from a health point of view. I need hardly say that it is most gratifying to Government that the work that has been carried out with a view to reducing the risk of malaria has been so successful and that this place may now be regarded, in the words of the Warden, as "a health resort." The fact that the Council of the College had every confidence in the future of the College despite the health record of the site is evidenced by the fact that it has spent during the past five years no less than $450,000 and has erected ten permanent buildings. I am very glad that such confidence has proved justified.

ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATIONS

At The Chinese Memorial

His Excellency the Governor with the General Officer Commanding, Hong Kong Area, The Senior Naval Officer and the Senior Royal Air Force Officer will be met at the foot of the Botanic Garden steps by the Chinese Members of Council, who will escort them up the steps to the Memorial.

"Last Post" will be sounded by Military Buglers. Then there will be a short pause followed by "Reveille".

His Excellency the Governor will then lay a wreath followed by the General Officer Commanding. The Senior Naval Officer and the Senior Royal Air Force Officer.

Chinese Members of Council will then lay a wreath followed by: Chinese Representatives on the Sanitary Board, Senior Members of the District Watch Committee, Chairman of the Tung Wah Hospital, Chairman of the Po Leung Kuk, and Chairman of the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce.

Then wreaths will be laid by others who desire to do so.

Other Members of the Executive and Legislative Councils have also been invited to take their places beside the Memorial Arch.

"Last Post" and "Reveille" will be blown by buglers of the South Wales Borderers, and a body of Chinese from the Chinese portion of the 40th Company Royal Engineers will parade under a British Officer.

The steps leading up to the Memorial Arch will be lined by Special Police Reserves, and a detachment of District Watchmen will parade under Inspector Andrew.

TWO LAWYERS ADMITTED

To Practice In The Colony

A barrister and a solicitor, Mr. George She and Mr. Chau Hung Nin respectively, were admitted to practice at the Local Bar by his Lordship the Chief Justice, Mr. A. D. A. MacGregor at the Supreme Court yesterday.

Both applications were moved by the acting Attorney General, the Hon. Mr. R. E. Lindsell.

In moving the approval of the admission of Mr. George She as a Barrister of the Supreme Court of Hong Kong," the acting Attorney-General said that Mr. She was a member of a highly respectable and honourable family, and had been born in the Colony.

Six years ago Mr. She went to Oxford University where he graduated. He later went to Switzerland to continue his studies, and was called to the Bar at Gray's Inn last year.

In granting the application, His Lordship said that it gave him very great pleasure to admit Mr. She and wished him the best of luck in the career he had chosen for himself.

Mr. H. N. Chau

The acting Attorney-General then rose to move an application for the approval of Mr. Chau Hung-nin, as a solicitor. Mr. Chau, said the acting Attorney-General, was a first cousin to the Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau.

In 1928, Mr. Chau was articled to Mr. G. G. N. Tinson, one of the principals of Messrs. Johnson, Stokes and Masters, and, after serving his required five years' articleship, went to England in 1933, where he joined a London firm of solicitors, the agents of Messrs. Johnson, Stokes and Masters, in order to get the necessary experience in English Law.

In June last year Mr. Chau sat for his papers before His Lordship.

His Lordship said that it also gave him great pleasure to accede to the application of Mr. Chau, and wished him every success in his work.

SOCIAL WELFARE

"Occupation" Centres For Unemployed

An excellent instance of co-operation between the State and voluntary Social Welfare work is provided by the extensive work for the unemployed which is being carried on in many countries, especially in Englan. The State keeps the unemployed alive, voluntary workers co-operate with it in trying to keep them fit and happy.

It took some time before the stage was reached when unemployment was recognised as a national problem, and funds to maintain those who could not get work were provided by the State. If assistance had stopped there the result might well have proved calamitous, for then men would have had just enough money to keep themselves and their families alive and they would have had nothing to do all day. They would have been freed from the agonising daily search for something to keep off hunger, but they would soon have ceased to search for employment or to look forward to the day when they would work again. Then the dictum that "the unemployed man of to-day is the unemployable man of to-morrow" would certainly have been proved true.

Fortunately voluntary workers thought of a new form of service. So widespread is the spirit of Social Service in our day that the inspiration came to many at the same time. The fundamental idea came from the men themselves—the inspiration consisted in finding a way to satisfy a pathetic longing. "If I only had something to do," was the pitiful sigh of many an unemployed man, even after he had been assured of the dole. "If I do not get work before the end of the year," a young man said to me once after he had been unemployed for ten months, "I shall never work again." He got work, fortunately but many, equally anxious, did not, and it was the saddest of experiences to see men deteriorating day by day through idleness for which they were not responsible. "If we cannot give them employment, we can at least give them occupation," said the originators of the new welfare movement. So the occupational centres came into being.

Useful Practical Work

The idea behind the movement was to give unemployed men something to do "to keep their hand in" until they found work again. It must not be useless work like some of the "relief works" that had such an unfortunate history, digging a hole and filling it again, or something else equally futile, but some occupation that would interest those who were engaged in it. On the other hand, it would not do to found a new industry, for that would mean throwing other men out of employment somewhere else. Usually the first work was the fitting up of club-rooms. A building of some kind, any kind, was obtained, the men were given paint and wood, brushes and tools, and told to go ahead. Within a short time the building was transformed—and it was the men's own, and they were proud of it.

When that was done, materials for working were provided: lasts and leather and tools to mend shoes; timber and work-benches to make cupboards and stools for the homes, and so on. Soon there were men making picture-frames, doing fret-work, juggling with wireless scrap, making lamp-shades, binding books, and many similar things, while, ouside, disused quarries were being turned into swimming pools and waste ground, often old brick-fields, converted into football pitches. But the transformation that was seen was nothing to that worked in the men themselves. Instead of being lethargic and depressed, they took a new interest in life, they frequented the club library at night, asked for classes of all kinds and could be found every evening studying every conceivable subject from world politics to simple arithmetic.—

Behind all this activity there was a group of quiet, efficient, voluntary workers, who directed and planned and then effaced themselves. The best social workers in England took part in this work—in addition to whatever welfare work they were already engaged in—and the result has been the most efficient piece of Social Service ever carried on in the country in our day.

MARKET HYGIENE

When we point with unconcealed pride at the scenic beauty of Hong Kong, enhanced by the presence of lofty buildings and good roads, when we speak of the struggles of the pioneer that have rendered all these things possible in a once-barren island, we probably overlook the fact that in one respect at least we are still very backward and can take a lesson from some of the humbler cities who are our neighbours.

We refer of course to the ancient state of our main market and the antiquated conditions which prevail there. No one who has been taught the most elementary principles of hygiene can defend the Central Market as it stands to-day. The lower floor is wet and dirty, and a foul stench pervades through the whole building, and it is under conditions such as these that meat, fish, vegetables, fruit and poultry are exposed for sale. The market has been in this state for many years and the public have become accustomed to conditions which will not be tolerated in any other city half the size of Hong Kong.

In Singapore, the markets are spotlessly clean, so much so, that many people do their own marketing, instead of depending entirely on their servants, as is the case in Hong Kong. Lest it should be thought that the Chinese stall holder cannot be taught to be clean, one need only turn to the hygienic state in which meat and vegetables are sold in Shanghai and Tientsin. In Shanghai, the markets are thoroughly cleaned and scrubbed once a day, and they present a spic and span appearance to patrons, while in Tientsin the markets are a credit to the Chinese authorities.

Where the question of the food supply of a large section of the community is concerned, the authorities owe it to the consumer to see that proper, modern and hygienic facilities are provided for the distribution of that food. Regulations for the markets in Hong Kong, we daresay, are rigidly observed and the wrongdoer promptly brought to book, but we suggest that it is impossible to apply modern regulations in a market that was never designed to cope with up-to-date ideas of cleanliness. What is needed is a new market to replace the Central Market where proper provisions for drainage exist, where the floors are made of material which cannot be otherwise than neat and clean, where meat is not exposed so that it could be touched by every potential buyer, where the entrails of birds, etc., are concealed from view, and where there is plenty of light and ventilation to prevent any stench from pervading through the whole building. When the authorities can provide conditions such as these for the marketing of the Colony's food supply, it will be time enough to insist that stall holders observe the most modern rules of sanitation and hygiene.

With a market such as we have envisaged (which the public has every right to expect in a big city such as Hong Kong), it will be no difficult task for the educational authorities to show school children what is really meant by hygiene. At present the children are taught to observe certain rules in relation to food, which they can see for themselves, are not observed outside of the covers of their own books. So long as we tolerate present conditions, so long will they remain with us. We suggest that in the matter of markets the authorities can set a very good example by taking the initiative and make an early move towards better facilities. Hong Kong has excellent hospitals and medical institutions and a great deal of research work has been done here in diseases such as malaria and typhoid. Surely prevention is better than cure and a spotlessly clean and hygienic market should be the first consideration of the authorities.

MIYAGOSHI MURDER

Case Settled

Tientsin, Nov. 7.

Chinese sources state that the case of the Japanese contractor, Miyagoshi, who was murdered, has been virtually settled. Wang Ching Hung, alleged to be involved in the murder has been arrested, and the magistrates of Yutien and Tsunhua dismissed, while compensation of $10,000 has been paid.

The authorities will also carry out other stated demands which were presented by the Japanese Army representatives, thus completing a settlement.

Mr. Yuh Sueh Chung stated that he has no intention to transfer the provincial Government to Paotingfu.—Reuter.

THE PACIFIC ISLANDS

Firm Denial By Japan

Tokyo, Nov. 7.

A firm denial that Japan has erected fortifications in the Pacific Islands was made in Japanese naval circles, which also denied naval establishments are being maintained in the Islands. They expressed surprise at the "Fuss" made in the American Press over the matter and said that the only establishments in the Islands were of an industrial nature.

It was further contended that Japan occupied the islands during the war to facilitate the allied plan of operations and sovereignty of the Islands rested on Japan, the islands having been given her not by the League of Nations but by the Allied Council.—Reuter.

JAPAN AND SIAM

Japanese Capital For Siam Canal

London, Nov. 2.

In the course of a debate yesterday in the House of Commons on questions concerning the Sultanate of Perak, bordering the Isthmus of Kra belonging to Siam, several members stated that apprehensions had been aroused in Great Britain by Japanese diplomacy in Siam and Malaya in connection with reports on the planned construction, by the Siamese Government, of a canal across the isthmus.

A member who recently visited the region, asserted that the projected canal, which would link the Indian Ocean with the China Sea, deserved to be discussed, for it was proposed that the building of the canal should be financed by the Japanese.

"The realization of this project," he said," will have a serious influence on our strategical position in Malay Peninsula. Let us bear in mind that the digging of the Panama Canal was of great strategical importance in the western world," he concluded.

SAAR PROBLEM DISCUSSED

Franco-German Meeting

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, November 7, 4.30 p.m.)

Paris, Nov. 7.

A meeting took place on Tuesday afternoon at the Qual D'Orsa when, Laval received the German Ambassador Roland-Koester and discussed in cordial tones the various problems confronting both countries, above all those connected with the coming Saar plebescite. Laval is reported to have said very courteously, but none the less firmly, that France neither would nor could forego any international obligations undertaken by the League of Nations. Laval also said that he attached particular importance to the denials in the foreign press about the alleged military measures especially those about troop movements. He was desirous to remove all causes of misunderstanding.

The Ambassador voicing the views of the Reichs Government, confirmed that Germany by no means under-estimated the significance of the conditions laid down in the treaty of Versailles for assuring the freedom of the ballot by the people of the Saar. The French Foreign Minister on his part recalled that the intentions of the French Government regarding the complete respect for this freedom to vote had always been clear.—Transocean Kuo Min.

TAKING STOCK

Rome, Nov. 7.

The Saar committee of the League of Nations met on Tuesday at the Palazzo Chigi under the Chairmanship of the Italian reporter to the League of Nations' Saar Questions' Committee, Aloisi.

The Secretariat issued a communique about the meeting stating that the session was held to review everything accomplished up till now and then to formulate proposals which will be presented in the form of a report at the next meeting to be held on November 21.—Transocean Kuo Min.

ENTHUSIASM IN CHANGTING

Communist Reign Now Over

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press". (Copyright.)]

Amoy, Nov. 7.

Evincing enthusiasm for the return of Government troops, more than 4,000 people attended a mass meeting at Changting directed by Col. Li Yen Nien. Eight from the Fourth Column and five members of the local gentry were elected to effect co-operation between the civil and military officials to stabilize prices of commodities and enforce other rehabilitation measures.

In pursuance of Col Li's order, the local authorities are shortly taking a census of the city population and organising militia forces with a view to eradicating the Communist influence. A host of former followers of the Communists has returned to the Government fold. Farmers, carrying hoes and ploughs, have reoccupied long-abandoned homesteads.—China United Press.

TRUNK HIGHWAY COMPLETION

Tientsin, Nov. 7.

The completion of trunk highways in the interior and resumption of bus service on the Suiyuan-Sinkiang highway will greatly facilitate communications in the north west. Prior to the operation of the bus service, mail to Sinkiang via Siberia took more than a month whereas at present it takes only twelve to twenty days at domestic instead of foreign rates. Bus running between Kweihua and Suiyuan has been in operation since 1st November on a weekly service.

A passenger and freight bus, leaving Tientsin for Hami, inaugurating the fifteenth extension to Tihua, the Sinkiang capital, has been planned.—China United Press.

NEW ORGAN IN MUKDEN

Forced Occupation Of Farm Lands

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright.)]

Tientsin, Nov. 7.

Japan has established in Mukden another new organ known as the Agricultural Affairs Supervision Committee to facilitate forced occupation of Chinese farm lands by Japanese and Koreans and to arbitrate in disputes arising from such occupation.

According to a Mukden message, the committee is composed of a Japanese chairman, two delegates from the Japanese Embassy, puppet representatives of the Japanese Gendarmes Headquarters and two Koreans. Branches have been opened practically in all districts in the North Eastern Provinces.—China United Press.

Kiangsu, Chekiang has drawn up plans for development of the fishing industry. A $2,200,000 loan from the British Boxer Fund has been successfully negotiated for the purchase of a number of fishing vessels and modern fishing apparatus from England.

Schools are being established where instruction and information can be supplied to native fishermen.—China United Press.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

One case of Enteric Fever was reported to the Health Authorities for the 24 hours ended November 6.

The 1st Destroyer Flotilla left Gibraltar for Malta on Tuesday, en route to Singapore, where it will change over with the 8th Destroyer Flotilla.

A 19-year-old girl, Lung Leung, living at 20 Bridges Street, attempted to take her life on Tuesday by taking Lysol. She was in a serious condition when discovered and conveyed to hospital.

A shop foki, Luk Yee Sang, was injured on Tuesday by bags of rice being displaced and falling on him at 452, Shanghai Street. He was admitted to the Kowloon Hospital.

Mrs. S. H. Dodwell and the Misses Dodwell will be returning to the Colony by the s.s. Patroclus, arriving on Saturday. They will take up their residence at "Haytor," 301, The Peak.

Mr. J. P. Sherry, manager of the Hong Kong Telephone Co., Ltd., returned to the Colony by the Yasukuni Maru. He was accompanied by Mrs. Sherry and Master Sherry.

While driving his car in Hennessy Road, Wanchai, on Tuesday, Mr. G. T. Padgett, of the Hong Kong Electric Co., endeavoured to avoid a Chinese who had got into his way. The man, however, was knocked down, and received injuries reported to be of a minor nature at the Government Civil Hospital, where he was taken after the accident.

Choi Ching, a mason employed on the new Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank building, was injured on Tuesday through being struck on the head by a brick which had become accidentally dislodged. He received a scalp wound, and was sent to the Government Civil Hospital for treatment.

By special arrangement with their Australian Head Office the local branch of the Paramount Films of China, Inc., are receiving, on November 15, by the s.s. Tatsuta Maru, a special Paramount News Reel covering the end of the great Air Race at Melbourne. The picture will be shown immediately at the Queen's Theatre on November 15, together with "Death Takes A Holiday."

In connection with the Empire Link Music and Educational Plan, it is understood that 52 blind girls at the Pokfulam Home will be taught singing and piano by Mme. Lottie Gordon. These blind girls commenced their training on Tuesday. Free training for other missionary homes will also be provided. The first scholarship awarded under the new plan has been given to Miss Kee Chi, 706, Nathan Road, for piano, singing and elocution for one year. Miss Kee will be taught by Madame Gordon.

A fierce blaze broke out at No. 2, Sai Wo Lane, West Point, on Tuesday night causing over $4,000 damage. The amount is said to be covered by insurance. Starting in a tea store owned by Wong Cheung, where a number of rattan mats ignited on the ground floor, the flames quickly mounted to the first floor, and had obtained a firm hold before the arrival of the fire brigade. The shop on the ground floor was completely gutted, the loss being estimated at over $3,000. The first floor was also burnt out. No casualties, however, were reported.

LONG-DISTANCE TELEPHONE

For Nine-Province Network

Nanking, Oct. 30.

Nine provinces in China, namely, Kiangsu, Chekiang, Anhwei, Kiangsi, Hunan, Hupeh, Honan, Shantung and Hopei, will be linked up by a long-distance telephone network within a period of less than three years according to plans drafted by the Ministry of Communications.

A sum of $600,000, it is learned, has been solicited with the Shanghai Postal Remittances and Savings Bank as a form of investment. And it is agreed that the bank deposits from the receipts of the three government cable telegraph companies, including the Great Northern, the Eastern Extension, Australasia and China, and the Commercial Pacific will serve as security.

According to the plans of the Ministry five trunk lines will be installed, namely Nanking-Tientsin, Tsinan-Hopei, Hsuchow-Chengchow and Hankow-Changsha, and Nanking-Shanghai. The Nanking-Shanghai line however will be installed first.—Central News Agency.

C.N.A.C. AIR-MAIL

Shanghai-Canton

Shanghai, Nov. 2.

After a suspension of more than seven months, the air mail service between Shanghai and Canton will be resumed at 6.30 a.m. to-day, when a new Douglas Dolphin seaplane is to take off from Lunghwa Aerodrome. It has a speed of 140 miles an hour and is expected to reach Canton by 2.30 p.m. The same plane will leave Canton at 6.30 a.m. on Sunday, reaching here at about 3 p.m. the same day.

The service is being operated by the China National Aviation Corporation. To ensure safety, no passengers will be carried until the pilots have received a thorough testing by practical experience in carrying the mails. For about one month the plane will maintain a once-a-week service, flying to Canton on Fridays and back on Sundays. When a second Douglas Dolphin seaplane is ready, a twice-a-week service will be operated.

The pilot and co-pilot for to-day's flight will be Mr. E. M. Allison, chief pilot and operations manager of the C.N.A.C., and Capt. Cecil Sellers, a veteran aviator who is expected to be put on the Shanghai-Canton run permanently. The radio operator on the plane will be Mr. W. W. Ehmer. Mr. K. I. Nieh, assistant operations manager of the C.N.A.C., Mr. P. C. Goreger, engineer, Mr. H. Chen, and Mr. C. H. Liu, both co-pilots, will accompany the party in the plane to Canton as passengers.

DEMOCRATS RIDING TO VICTORY

Over Two-Thirds Senate Majority

New York, November 7.

Disaster in the Republican party appears to be overwhelming. The latest returns show the composition of the Senate to be 67 Democrats and 27 Republicans. The returns of the House of Representatives indicate 262 Democrats elected or leading against 88 Republicans.

Senator Reed, a virtual leader of the Republican party at the last Congress, is running far behind Guffey, the Democratic rival for the Senate for Pennsylvania, but Schnader, Republican candidate for the State governorship, appears to be leading the Democratic candidate Earle.

Supporters of the New Deal appear victorious in Indiana, Missouri, New York and Ohio, the former Republican stronghold, Rhode Island, West Virginia, Illinois, Massachusetts, New Mexico, New Jersey, Minnesota, Wyoming, Washington and Nevada.—

The latest representative figures are:—Democrats 234, Republicans 70, Farm Labourite 1, Progressive 1, Undeclared 17.

SENATE MAJORITY

The Democrats have obtained a majority of over two-thirds in the Senate for the first time since the Republican party was organised.

It is estimated that the Democrats polled 10,200,000 votes. The Republicans had 7,600,000 throughout the country.

A tremendous landslide in favour of the New Deal was proclaimed by the tabloid papers in large black letters filling the entire page.

Senator Foss was defeated in Ohio by Donahey. The latter told the audiences during the campaign 'I don't know anything about money or international politics. Do you.?'

Brittan was defeated by James M. Candres.

The latest state of the parties in the Senate including the uncontested seats at this election are:—

Democrats	66
Republicans	22
Farm Labourite	1
Progressive	1

Sixty four is two-thirds.—Reuter.

EARLY SCENES

New York, Nov. 6.

President Roosevelt has won a clear "right of way" for the New Deal for two years or more as the result of the elections. This is conceded even by the Republicans who are watching the early returns roll in from the eastern and middle-west States along pro-Democrat lines, as predicted earlier.

The nation went to poll amid a welter of charges and counter-charges, by both sides, of intimidation, violence, illegal registrations, and other breaches of electoral law. Accusations of high-handedness were hurled against the police, deputy United States marshalls, and sheriffs.

Many arrests were made, notably in Pennsylvania, the main battlefield for the New Deal, where feeling is most bitter after an affray at Kelayres, near Hazelton, where a Democratic procession was ambushed. Four people died of wounds from machine-gun fire.

A sixty-year-old man at West Union, Ohio, was shot dead in an election quarrel, making a total of seven deaths throughout the country during the elections.

NEW DEAL CONGRESS

A New Deal Congress seems an accomplished fact. Returns indicate a record poll for a year in which no presidential election is involved.

Governor Lehman of New York is apparently romping home to office.

West Virgina, Maryland, New York State soon reported leads for the Democratic senatorial candidates while all Democrats were elected as usual from Georgia, Mississippi, and other southern states.

In an electoral contest in Chicago between two negroes, the Republican representative is losing ground.

The Democrats will undoubtedly increase their Senate strength to a two-thirds majority as the latest returns from the hitherto predominantly Republican states of Maryland, West Virginia, Connecticut and Ohio show the Republican vote is in arrears.

LEHMAN RE-ELECTED

The Republican candidate for the governorship, Mr. Moses, has conceded the re-election of Governor Lehman in New York State.

Democratic Senators were easily elected in Virginia, Florida, Mississippi, and Texas, while the Democrats have established early leads in Arizona, New York, Nevada and Tennessee.

Republicans, however, hold a narrow advantage in Rhode Island, Vermont and Indiana.

A major upset is apparent in Maryland where the Democratic Governor Ritchie, seeking a fifth term of office, is lagging behind the Republican, Mr. Rice, in the Democrat stronghold of Baltimore.

One hundred and fourteen Democrats and 12 Republicans have so far been elected to the House of Representatives.—Reuter.

Moscow, Nov. 7.

In an order to the Far Eastern army delivered in the customary flamboyant style, Commander Blucher, on the occasion of the 17th anniversary of the foundation of Soviet Russia, stressed the great political task which the Far Eastern army had to fulfil.

GEN. VASSILY BLUCHER

"If we are attacked," Blucher said, "we will take up arms. Every attack on Russian soil will be combatted with most ruthless measures and not an inch of Russian soil will be abandoned without a struggle."

Kalinin seconded his Red general and declared that if Russia was attacked the Soviet Union and army would "do their duty."—Transocean Kuo Min.

RUINOUS COMPETITION IN BUILDING

Most Disastrous Of All For Japan

London, Nov. 7.

The "Times" draws the conclusion from its Toyko telegrams that Japan may decide to denounce the Washington Treaty in the near future and points out that such a step, if taken, coupled with the simultaneous lapse of the London Agreement, imposes upon all concerned in naval conversations now proceeding in London the imperative duty of straining every nerve to draw up a new status of limitation to replace it.

The business of these London meetings is to lay the foundations on which a full conference can make a new agreement next year. Abrogation would only be a calamity if it meant the end of limitation altogether. Even if negotiations should end in a breakdown and if, as seems certain, the consequences were to be a large increase in the already huge American building programme, Britain, says the "Times," would not be at all disturbed by that particular result. It would regard the increase with complete composure as it is impossible to imagine a contingency which would bring American-British navies into conflict.

QUALITATIVE LIMITATION

After remarking that if Japan regards 5-5-3 as a stigma and there is nothing sacred about that or any other formula of naval strengths, the "Times" says, "what does matter is that the three greatest naval powers should work together, in practice to avoid ruinous competition in building which in the last resort would be most disastrous of all for Japan. Whatever happens it should be possible to maintain qualitative limitation—to eliminate that is to say all competition in sizes of ships and guns.

"There can never be any reason why each country should set about building not merely more but bigger ships in competition with one another to the complete disorganization of their national finances."—British Wireless.

BRITISH EFFORT

London, Nov. 6.

A formula for continuing the naval talks was suggested by Sir John Simon at an interview with Mr. Norman Davis, chief of the United States delegates, today.

Sir John Simon emphasised the fact that the British Government desired to see an understanding reached which would enable the 1935 Naval Conference to be called with some hope of success.

Mr. Davis informed the British Foreign Minister that the American delegation of experts was prepared to continue the talks on the new basis that Sir John has in mind.

After this assurance of American support for the British endeavour, the naval talks will reopen with full delegation conferences this week.——Reuter.

A CRITICAL MEETING

London, Nov. 7.

The meeting between the complete Japanese and British naval delegations to-day is considered a critical one in the naval talks. Sir John Simon is expected to suggest to the Japanese a means for reopening the naval talks as he did to Mr. Norman Davis yesterday.

The American delegation is making no appointments and is anxiously awaiting to hear the outcome of the meeting which will have an important bearing on future talks.

The next step expected will be a meeting between Britain and the Americans to-morrow.—Reuter.

DOUMERGUE CABINET IN PERIL

Breach Between Premier And Radical Group

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, November 7, 7.30 p.m.)

Paris, Nov. 7.

"Only a miracle can prevent a Cabinet crisis" was the opinion expressed by a prominent Government member on Tuesday night, according to press reports, but the possibility of such a miracle coming is not yet discounted in informed quarters where it is stated that President Lebrun is endeavouring to induce Doumergue to meet the Radical-Socialists half way on the vexed question of the provisional budgetary. According to the prevailing opinion, however, the breach between the Premier and the Radical-Socialists cannot be healed any more and all undoubtedly lead to the breaking up of the Cabinet.

On Tuesday the Cabinet Council culminated in a dramatic scene, according to "Matin" when Herriot informed the Premier that his own Radical-Socialists colleagues were unable to approve of the proposed procedure concerning the budgetary twelfths. Doumergue is said to have replied that under these circumstances, it is plain that the dissenting ministers should leave the Cabinet. This caused intense excitement, Herriot exclaiming, "does this mean that you distrust us?" President Lebrun finally succeeded in calming the excitement, but the Cabinet meeting broke up without any agreement being reached.

The situation is still further aggravated by the resolution passed by the Radical-Socialists Chamber Group on Tuesday which, while stressing the desirability of maintaining political trusts, demands the immediate opening of a debate on the budget which is tantamount to a rejection on the provisional budgetary grants requested by the Premier.

The question of Doubergue's eventual successor is already forming a topic of press discussion, the Foreign Minister, Laval being generally regarded as the most likely candidate since he may be able to form another government on the basis of the present coalition.—Transocean Kuo Min.

FINANCE IN LONDON

Renewed Outbreak of Nervousness

London, Nov. 7.

The doom of M. Doumergue's Cabinet is responsible for a renewed outbreak of continental nervousness, Paris being buyer of sterling and dollars. The franc would be weakened further but for strong recent intervention of the American Exchange Fund which bought francs on a large scale in order to prevent unwanted appreciation of dollars with resultant shipments of gold to New York.

The French Cabinet crisis is arousing apprehensions lest the events of February 6 be repeated. Moreover, the Saar elections impart a further unsettling influence and it is felt here that the situation demands a strong government which at present appears to be most difficult to attain.

Confidence in the ability of Belgium to remain on the gold bloc is again under suspicion as evidenced by the three months rate being at 42 centimes discount.

The above mentioned conditions resulted in intensification of the movement of continental panic money to London, further augmenting the already over-abundant short term funds.

LOCAL FOOTBALL

East Lancs Lose To Lincolns

Postponed from last Sunday the Senior League football match between the East Lancs and the Lincolns was played off yesterday on the Kowloon Football Ground and resulted in a win for the latter by 2 goals to 1.

The game opened with the East Lancs attacking but play was quickly transferred from one end to the other with both goals being raided in turn. From a melee in the middle of the first half in front of the East Lancs' goal a defender was penalised for an infringement and from the spot kick Baldry made no mistake.

The teams changed over with the Lincolns leading by one goal.

After the resumption the East Lancs were attacking the Lincolns' goal and were doing everything bar scoring, but from a pass by Lawson, Hollander headed the ball into the net to equalise.

The Lincolns were not to be daunted. Ridley was very prominent. From a concerted rush Higgins dived full length on the ground about five yards from the goal mouth and headed the ball into the net, giving the Lincolns the lead.

East Lancs returned to the attack and had bad luck on several occasions, the ball just missing the upright. The final whistle came with play transferred to midfield.

The game was fast throughout with little to choose between the teams. The Lincolns' backs were shaky under pressure while Swaine of the East Lancs played a sterling game at right back, breaking up many promising movements. Ridley and Baldry shone well in the forward line for the Lincolns. A draw would have been a reflection of the game.

Royal St. George's Meeting

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Oct. 17.

The autumn meeting of the Royal St. George's Club was concluded over the links at Sandwich when the results of five competitions were arrived at, a tie occurring in the sixth. The Lamb Memorial for the absolute best scratch score of the year was won by C. J. H. Tolley with the magnificent 69 he returned at the Easter meeting; the captain's medal for the Easter and autumn meetings went to N. A. Keith, with scores of 76+81=157. Keith also won the club memento for the best scratch score on the second day of the autumn meeting with a round of 82, and the handicap memento was won by Lieutenant-Colonel W. O. Walker with the excellent return of 90−15=75. Captain M. D. James took the Prince of Wales Cup for the best handicap aggregate at the autumn meeting at 150, his scores being 81−10=71 and 89−10=79. Colonel G. Ritson and Colonel J. S. Hughes tied for the Eastry Cup, the prize for the best handicap aggregate in the Easter and autumn meetings, also at 150.

The weather yesterday was very different from that of Saturday, for a boisterous north wind followed the gale warning, making conditions very trying all day. R. H. Hill, who had won the Sandwich Corporation Cup on Saturday with his excellent net score of 69 and was leading in the Prince of Wales Cup, had to return to London, so that Captain M. D. James found his most dangerous competitor safely out of the path. He could not in the circumstances repeat his performance of the first day, but his score of 89−9 was good enough.

Keith, who won the club scratch memento, might have had what, in such weather, would have been a really good round. He started late, when the wind had abated a little, and reached the turn in 39, including a 6 at the long seventh hole. Coming home he started very steadily in 4, 5, 4, and after taking 6 at the 13th stood on the 18th teeing ground with a 4 for 79. Sadly for him he found Grant's bunker, that fatal little hazard nestling into the right of the green, and the 4 he had hoped for turned into a 7.

ATLANTIC ICE PATROL

20 Years' Record

The Atlantic Ice Patrol has completed its 20th year with a perfect record, during which period not a life has been lost as result of the Arctic iceberg peril.

Fourteen nations contribute to the cost of maintaining the patrol, which watches for icebergs drifting towards the liners' courses and broadcasts warnings to Atlantic ships.

The largest contributor is Great Britain, the country with the greatest fleet at stake. Last year Great Britain, whose share of the expenses is 40 per cent., paid £4,630 of the expense. The United States contributes 18 per cent., and the U.S.S.R. 1 per cent. Canada, Northern Ireland, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Italy, Germany and Japan also helped to keep the fleet at work.

The patrol was originally intended to warn ships of the presence of icebergs, but its work has since been extended to include a systematic study of how, when and where icebergs and icefields may be expected. The danger is in the spring, when rising temperature cut the bergs loose from the icefields. Not until June 29 this year was the patrol able to report "All clear."

About 600 icebergs were sighted this spring. The record spring was that of 1929, when 1,351 were seen.

ARSENAL'S HIGH SPEED GOALS

Over Manchester

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 17.

Football's big riddle is answered. Arsenal, in beating Manchester City by 3—0 before a Highbury full-house, conclusively proved their superiority over the Cup-holders.

They settled another point as well. The old ability to rise to the important occasion is still there. James and his colleagues silenced the critics who believed they had detected an Arsenal decline.

Arsenal's greatness, and the word is used deliberately, was revealed in an amazing two-minute spell a quarter of an hour from the end. They were then leading by a goal cleverly headed by Bowden at the eighteenth minute and Manchester City were striving desperately to draw level.

In the space of two minutes the City defence, as sound as a rock previously, was shattered by two of the most brilliant high-speed attacks ever seen. Bastin, Bowden and Beasley went through the opposition like forked lightning. First Bowden headed into the net, next Bastin crashed the ball by a helpless goalkeeper, both goals coming from Beasley's centres.

How Did It Happen?

It was not surprising that when the City team arrived back in their dressing room they were still wondering how it had all happened. They had planned so deliberately to put the Arsenal machinery out of gear and it was very hard to realise why the scheme had failed.

But the City players, and the club's officials paid generous tribute to their conquerors. "The better team won" was the unanimous verdict.

And, now, "One for the losers!" Manchester City are a brilliant side, just as entertaining to watch as Arsenal. They played some beautiful football in this match which will remain in the memory of all who saw it as a classic.

Why were the City beaten? Because their tactical plans fell down. They relied upon a four-forward attack, Marshall being withdrawn for the purpose of shadowing James. But James refused to be shadowed. He roved all over the field—right wing, left wing and (for long spells) way back in defence.

Denied Marshall's support in attack, Toseland, his right-wing partner, was rather like a fish out of water. He lacked the quality of individual skill to fight his own battles, in addition to which he found Hapgood in his best England form.

All the real danger to Arsenal came from the Herd-Brook wing.

Cowan As Third Back

Tactical Scheme No. 2 was only a half-success. It involved the positioning of Cowan, the centre-half. Cowan is in his happiest mood when he is attacking. In this match he was an uncompromising third back. He succeeded in putting the stranglehold on Drake, it is true, but the team suffered from the absence of the down-the-middle drive he can impart so effectively.

Except during those hectic two minutes of Arsenal hammer-blows, the City full-backs were well able to take care of themselves; in fact, Barkas, the left back, compared very favourably with Hapgood, which is high praise indeed.

With Cowan playing so far back, Busby and Bray were expected to go up with the attack. Busby was the outstanding wing half-back in ball play, but Copping and Hapgood took a firm grip of City's right flank. Concentration on Busby was, indeed, Arsenal's match-winning move.

The rest of Arsenal's defence was just as sure and solid. Crayston, the right-half, made a marked advance on previous form, and Roberts was the winner of his duel with Tilson. Forward, James and Bowden were dazzling in their footwork—Bowden has never played better, and Bastin once more revealed the ideal big-match temperament.

INTERNATIONAL COMMERCE

Improvement Shown In Returns

The Panama Canal and the Suez Canal, two greatest barometers of world business, offer joint evidence of a definite improvement in international commerce and business.

National trade figures sometimes lie in this time of exchange abnormalities, but statistics of actual weight of cargo passing through the world's waterways have afforded unmistakable evidence of returning prosperity.

More ships are cruising the seven seas, their cargoes are heavier, and there is more business at terminals than a year ago. Suez statistics told this story for the Eastern Hemisphere, and new Panama traffic figures have confirmed it in the Western.

Suez Figures

Suez figures are prepared on the basis of the calendar year and showed the cargo tonnage through the canal in 1933 was 26,915,000 again 23,632,000 in 1932.

Panama totals are prepared for the fiscal year, and for the twelve months ended June 30 showed that 24,641,000 tons of cargo had passed through as compared with 19,525,000 in the previous fiscal year.

The record of transits told the same story. Suez reported 5,432 transits in 1933 as against 5,032 in 1932, and 6,274 in 1929, the last pre-depression year.

Panama Returns

Panama reported 5,506 vessels in transit in 1933-34 compared with 4,466 the previous year.

Both waterways reported larger net tonnage for the vessels in transit, that of Suez being 30,677,000 in 1933 compared with 28,340,000 in the previous year, and that of Panama for 1933-34 being 28,447,000 against 22,663,000 in the previous fiscal year.

Tolls collected at Suez in 1933 were 856,508,000 francs against 800,142,000 francs in 1932. Panama tolls in the last fiscal year were $24,063,000.

LOCAL RUGBY

Club Win Against Combined Army XV

Another good Rugger game was witnessed on the Club's ground yesterday afternon when the Club were again successful, defeating a combined Royal Artillery and Lincoln Regiment team by fourteen points (one goal and three tries), to five (one goal).

The Club team was considerably heavier than the Army team but the tackling of the latter was so effective as to even matters. However they were no match for the Club when it came to open passing work and failed to secure the ball from the scrum.

Hall played an excellent game for the soldiers and was a solid player both in attack and defence. Hubbard also did very good work on the line and got in some fine line kicks.

For the Club Robertson was as sure as usual and the newcomer Tudor played well to get across for two nice tries.

The game opened with some wild passing on the Club's part from the scrum, but after steadying down a three-quarter rush saw Jones over the line. Robertson converted.

Shortly after Goldman secured in a good passing bout, and was well collared, but managed to fall over the line. A splendid effort to convert by Robertson just missed.

After the resumption Tudor picked up in a melee and with a run went over wide out. The kick failed.

The Army now came away fast and with a fine run Hall touched down between the posts after Lammert had missed him. The kick was successful.

Just before time Tudor again got going and scored the final points for Club.

Dr. Selby was referee and turned out the following.

Army:—Potter (Lincolns), Gnr. Hall (R.A.), Lt. Muspratt-Williams (Lincolns), Maj. McIntyre (R.A.), Lt. Medcalf (R.A.), Bmbr. Hall (R.A.), Makin L/C MacKann, Cpl. Chicken, Pte Thornhill, Pte Fall, Pte Hughes (Lincolns), Bmbr. Allmark and Gnr. Wright (R.A.).

Club:—Lammert, Goldman, Robertson, Griffiths, Jones, Hutchinson, Tudor, Cherrill, Castleton, Edkins, Baflow, Garrod, Cummings, Scott, Bradford.

THE "KAHO" IN AMOY

A Naval wireless message issued yesterday was to the effect that the China Merchants s.s. Kaho which was pirated a few days ago, arrived at Amoy on Tuesday and left the same evening, presumably for Shanghai.

H.M.S. Wishart, which went to the scene of the piracy on escort duty, to render moral support to the Chinese authorities, is returning to Hong Kong to-day.

The Chinese gunboat Wu Fang is at present operating in Hong Hai Bay in connection with the piracy.

FLIGHT TO AUSTRALIA AND BACK

London, Nov. 6.

When Cathcart Jones and Kenneth Waller, who flew to Australia and back to England in 13 days, were entertained at the City Club to-day Jones expressed the view that 13 days was slow time.

"We should be able to do it in four days there and four days back, without slightest strain on the machine or the personnel," he said.

He added their flight would have been much easier with wireless equipment.—

ST. STEPHEN'S COLLEGE

Advice to Students

I believe that it is considered usual on occasions such as this to say a few words especially to the boys but I confess that I always feel very diffident about it. Max O'Rell once wrote "advice is a luxury chiefly enjoyed by the one who gives it." I doubt however whether I can claim to enjoy even giving advice. It is so very difficult to find anything new to say on any subject which one might reasonably bring up. There are however two things to which I should like to refer. One is the well known theme of tradition. I should indeed hesitate to refer to it were it not that St. Stephen's College from its special constitution and aims appear to me more than any school in Hong Kong to offer the opportunity for developing great traditions. Now the word tradition implies that it is something handed down but it is not sufficient go to a school and merely accept the traditions that you find there: it is essential that you should foster and develop such traditions and hand them down in turn to your successors not only untarnished but enhanced and tradition does not merely imply pride in the school and its past but pride in all that the school stands for in its reputation for integrity, honesty and straight dealing. Each of you must do your very best to help not merely to maintain such a reputation at a high level but even to raise it so that you may feel when you leave that you have added something to the value of what was entrusted to you. It has been said that tradition and discipline are essential to the development and maintenance of national life and of this there can be little doubt, and these characteristics must surely be developed to the full. In this connection I should like to say that Nationalism looms very large to-day but it has its dangers. There is no doubt that a nation should set out to develop and purify its national life but only as a step towards greather things. A weak, inefficient or dishonest nation is bound to be a clog in the great world machine and it is the duty of each nation while strengthening and improving itself to keep alive to the fact that in doing so it is not developing itself merely into a strong isolated unit but is making itself fit to take its proper place in the world.

To those of you who are on the threshold of a wider life of citizenship I venture to commend these thoughts for your consideration.

Good Manners

The other matter about which I should like to say a word is that of good manners. One cannot but feel with come sadness that the tendency of the world to-day is to neglect good manners. By that expression I do not mean mere etiquette but rather politeness and consideration for your fellows whether they be old or young. True good manners must be based on such consideration for others. It is not neccsary to be insintere. There are many people who think that it is much more straight and honourable to behave and speak exactly as they may feel at the moment. Rochefoucauld said in one of his celebrated maxims "the majority of young people believe themselves to be natural when they are only unpolished and unmannerly." There is I fear a touch of that idea in the part of the world from which I come namely the north of England. The average Northerner rather prides himself on standing for no humbug but just saying exactly what he thinks and feels. Now there are times that it may be desirable and perhaps even necessary to show candour but even so there is a right and wrong way of doing it. Whether it is that the speed of life has increased so much that people cannot be bothered to indulge in courtesies to the same extent that they used to I cannot say but there is no doubt that there has been a deterioration in this respect, a thing which is greatly to be deplored. Courtesy and consideration for others do help so much to make the wheels of life move along smoothly and I therefore appeal to all you boys not to undervalue their worth and again I stress what I consider to be a fact that true politeness is not based on rules of etiquette but on kindness and consideration for the feelings of others. Now that must end by brief preaching.

In conclusion I express the hope that as this is my first official visit to the College it will be found possible to mark it by allowing the College at some early convenient date a day's holiday. (Applause).

At the conclusion of the function, the Hon. Dr. Ts'o proposed a vote of thanks to His Excellency and Lady Peel for their presence and for the keen interest they have taken towards the welfare of the College.

EXCHEQUER RETURNS

Comparative Fall In Revenue

London, Nov. 6.

The Exchequer returns for the past week show that during the current financial year the total ordinary revenue, exclusive of self-balancing revenue, amounted, at November 3, to £333,046,439, which is £3,977,060 less than the amount collected at the corresponding date of last year.

Expenditure for the same period, exclusive of self-balancing items, was £414,653,559, which exceeds the amount expended at the corresponding date of last year by £8,087,297.—British Wireless.

NEWS FROM CHINA

SMUGGLING AND MURDER

Fish Boat People Arrested

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, Nov. 6.

Officers and crew of the Hai Ying, a fish boat of the Port Administration Bureau were placed under arrest to-day in connection with smuggling and killing a sailor of the preventive service aboard a cutter, which seized the smuggling vessel.

Two revenue cutters boarded the fish boat on November 3 at Toishan near Kongmoon and found sugar and salt fish on board. The skipper of the smuggling ship opened fire on the cutters, killing one sailor and wounding many. Sensing danger ahead, the master of the fish boat jumped overboard and escaped before his vessel was boarded.

Smuggling by government servants is a very serious offence, and guilty persons are subject to the death penalty. The engineers and sailors disclaimed any responsibility and said that everything was done by the absconding skipper.

Tailoring Business Good

Tailors of European clothes are doing quite well this autumn owing to the cheaper prices in serge and worsted. Some of the materials come from Japan, and their prices are lower than those of British goods. It is a fact that among well-to-do people here foreign style clothes are more popular than the native long gown.

Several government offices require officials to wear uniform, but this rule is not strictly observed. As a result, tailors of foreign clothes are doing good business. The high class tailors are adepts in the art of cutting which approaches the standard of Bond Street, or Fifth Avenue.

Individual Advertising

Printers of visiting cards are making profits even though business is not brisk until the approach of the Chinese New Year. Military officers, civilian officials, and merchants use visiting cards to advertise their calling. Often they are shifted to another position, and this means that new cards have to be printed.

These cards bear not only the name of the owner but his position, academic degrees, address, phone numbers and native district.

Nanking's Request For Help

ENLARGING THE CUSTOMS

Telegram Sent To Nanking

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, Nov. 7.

The South-west Political Council in its telegram to Nanking yesterday requested the Central Authorities to cancel its project of enlarging the Kowloon Chinese Customs on the ground that the trade of this province will be ruined by this project.

"Your justification is to prevent smuggling from Hong Kong to places in this province," the telegram said. "Such enlargement of the Kowloon customs does not check smuggling at all, because Macao and Kwangchouwan are also free ports, from which smuggled goods can be imported into Kwangtung."

Without giving any detailed explanation, the telegram averred that after the enlargement of the Kowloon customs, Chinese factories will either be moved to Hong Kong or closed up. All export and import firms will be set up in Hong Kong, and then all the warehouses in the interior or Canton have no further use, as all goods are stored up in Hong Kong.

Without this transit trade, many of the banks here will suffer heavy losses. The whole province will be adversely affected by this scheme of the Ministry of Finance, continued the telegram. Because the South-west Political Council is in Canton, it claims to understand the conditions here very well.

Mr. Hsiao Fu Chen, press officer of the South-west Political Council, told press representatives that when merchants here asked the Ministry of Finance to abolish this scheme, the reply is the "matter has been decided and cannot be conveniently cancelled."

Colonel Chow Po Hang, Superintendent of Customs, told the South-west Political Council that he has received no information about this Kowloon customs scheme, but the Council based its telegram on the reply of the Finance Ministry to the merchants.

COMMUNIST WAR NEWS

Kanchow Reported To Be Taken

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, Nov. 7.

A Nanking official report stated to-day that Kanchow, an important town in Southern Kiangsi, has been taken over by government forces following the evacuation by Cantonese troops, who are shortening their line of defence in Southern Kiangsi.

An official spokesman here said that all is now quiet in Southern Kiangsi, as the Cantonese position just across the Kwangtung border is not disturbed any more by the Communists, a majority of whom have shifted to Southern Hunan.

The Reds evacuated Changting in Western Fukien close to Kiangsi and the city occupied by the government forces on November 4. It appears that the Nanking divisions under General Li Yen Nien will push farther West in an effort to capture Juichin and Yutuh, which are reported to have been deserted by the Communists.

General Ho Ying Ching, Minister of War, is reported to be leading four divisions to Southern Hunan so as to stop the Communists there from fleeing westward. More detachments will be sent to Hunan to strengthen the provincial divisions against the Reds. The outlaws are scattered at Jucheng, Kweitung, I-Chang and Lingwu.

Chengkow, a border town on the Kwangtung side, has been occupied by the Reds since November 2, but an official report claims that the enemy there were driven away. The report stated that, according to the observation of the Cantonese planes, the riff-raff at Kweitung and Jucheng are moving West.

For the present, the Cantonese troops are concentrated at Northern Kwangtung and have not gone into Hunan. Their objective is to prevent the Communists from raiding the border towns.

HONOUR OVERDUE

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 17.

To-day in the racing world an overdue honour has been awarded, and an overdue first appearance is being made.

The Aga Khan has been made an honorary member of he Jockey Club. This is interesting, because it means that the Jockey Club rank him as a foreigner, in spite of the fact that he races principally in this country.

The only other honorary member (excluding officials of foreign jockey clubs) who lives in England is Mr. E. M. Weatherby, and he is a member of the family who are the stakeholders of the Jockey Club.

LATE NIGHT CABLES

The following cables were received last night by the American Oriental Finance Corporation and S. E. Levy and Co:—

London Forecast:

Stocks—Confidence throughout the nation in the Roosevelt Administration was revealed by the elections, which is expected to encourage a better sentiment on Wall Street.

Cotton—Cotton prices may open higher in sympathy with the Liverpool and Alexandria markets which were stimulated by the Anglo-German Debt Agreement. There is now less talk to increase the use of outside growths which perhaps were exaggerated, because the South Brazilian supplies of cotton were relatively lighter, while North Brazilian staple is very mixed.

Wheat—The Wheat market is expected to open higher on various advices, including the spread of rust in the Argentine and that rain in Australia had failed to check grass-hoppers

Rubber — The Rubber market may open a little better.

A.O.F.C. New York Cables

Election improves President's control of Congress.

Stocks—From irregularly higher opening market tapered off, volume small fairly steady.

Cotton—Better demand which includes Liverpool and continental purchases.

S.E. Levy & Co.'s Cables

The following cabled reports were furnished by Messrs. S. E. Levy and Company last night:—

Favourable factors prior to the opening of the markets:—1. The belief prevails that technical conditions will invite an extension of the recent rally. 2. The upward trend in steel actvity is bolstering sentiment. 3. The outlook in the building industry is regarded as bright on developments in connection with the Administration's housing programme.

An unfavourable factor was:—Outside interest remains at a low ebb.

Wall Street is moderately active. The Market is steady with minor fractional movements either way. Some slight extension of the recent upward trend seems to be anticipated.

London Silver:—Spot—23-7/16, unchanged; Forward—23-9/16, unchanged.

London Silver Comment:—Speculators bought. China sold. Business small.

BARCLONA DEATH SENTENCES

Commuted To Thirty Years' Imprisonment

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press").

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, November 7, 7.30 p.m.)

Madrid, Nov. 7.

It is officially stated that three Catalan officers, Ricardo, Perez Faras, and Escofet, who were sentenced to death by the Barcelona court martial for active participation in the revolt at that city, have been reprieved. Eighteen civilians sentenced to death in the province of Asturias have likewise been reprieved. All death sentences have been commuted to thirty years' imprisonment.—

CROATIAN LEADER'S EXTRADITION

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, November 7, 4.30 p.m.)

Vienna, Nov. 7.

It is denied that the Yugoslavian Minister here demanded the extradition of the Croatian leader, Pertchevitch as reported abroad. The Yugoslavian Minister merely referred to the case in the course of the usual reception of diplomats at the Chancellor's residence. It is true however, that the French Minister on behalf of his Government submitted to the Austrian authorities a request for Pertchevitch's extradition. The Austrian courts have not as yet given their decision.—

THE EXCHANGE MARKET

MESSRS. ROZA BROS.

The market in London yesterday was supported by speculators whilst China operated on both sides of the market. The tone was steady but without any definite indications. Prices were unchanged at 23 7/16 for Ready and 23 9/16 for Forward. No quotation was available from New York yesterday due to the holiday there.

In London Dollars were quoted at 4.99.

Market

Very dull. There was hardly any trading.

Sterling

Opened with sellers at 1/7½ for near, buyers bidding 1/7 9/16. Subsequently the buying rate receded to 1/7 17/32 for near resulting in a small business at 1/7 9/16 for second half December. towards the close the market steadied up slightly and 1/7 17/32 could have been obtained for November. 1/7 9/16 second half December and 1/7 19/32 January, buyers bidding 1/7 9/16 November, 1/7 19/32 second half December and 1/7⅝ January.

U.S. Dollars

Quiet. A small business was done towards the close at 40¾ for January delivery. The market closed with sellers at 40⅝ for near, 40 11/16 December and 40¾ January, buyers at 1/16 higher respectively.

Shanghai Dollars

Business was done during the course of the morning at 122⅞, 122¾ and 122 13/16 for near delivery. 122¾ was also done for December delivery. At the close there were sellers at 122 11/16 for near, buyers at 122 13/16 for November.

Shanghai Market

Sterling at 1/3¾ for near and 1/3 13/16 for forward, the near rate easing later to 1/3 13/16. Dollars opened at 33 1/16 for near but a later wire placed the market at not better than 32 15/16 sellers.

Silver Stocks as per advices of 31st ultimo estimated at Tls. 291,546,000 as against Tls. 353,979,000 a year ago.

CHINA'S SILVER EXPORTS

Duty Raised Result Of U.S. Buying

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 17.

The Customs duty on silver exports from China is raised from 2¼ to 10 per cent.

The Nanking Government has taken this action to safeguard her economic interests and protect her currency from the potential drain which has resulted from America's silver-buying plan. A total of 10,000,000 oz. had been shipped from the country in recent weeks.

Our City Editor writes:

There is nothing surprising about the Chinese action. Ever since the U.S. Government began an intensive campaign of purchasing silver abroad there have been rumours that China would restrict exports.

It is common knowledge that the Chinese authorities have sent very strong protests to the U.S. authorities on the subject; and reasonably so, because China's financial and economic system is based on silver, and if America is determined to go on purchasing vast quantities of silver abroad, this programme might carry a threat to the whole economic life of China.

The step now taken by China will decrease the present supply of silver available for purchase by America at current market prices. Presumably, speculators, who expect heavy U.S. buying to continue, will be encouraged by the news to look for an even higher price for the metal. But with the present uncertainty in the exchange market and also in the direction of American financial policy, there is every reason why speculators should be cautious.

CHINA MERCHANTS S.N. CO.

Negotiating With U.S. Shipping Board For 15 Vessels

According to Chinese reports, the China Merchants Steam Navigation Co. has entered into negotiations with the United States Shipping Board with a view to purchasing fifteen vessels.

The company is stated to have drawn up a comprehensive scheme for the development of China's shipping trade in which the 15 vessels will play a part.

Four new vessels built in England are also being added to the company's fleet.—
